

Continuing, President Wilson said:

It presents them as in a very deep and true sense a unit in world affairs, spiritual partners, standing together because thinking together, quick with common sympathies and common ideals. Separated they are subject to all the cross currents of the confused politics of a world of hostile rivalry; united in spirit and purpose they can not be disappointed of their peaceful destiny.

This is Pan Americanism. It has none of the spirit of empire in it. It is the embodiment, the effectual embodiment, of the spirit of law and independence and liberty and mutual service.

Is this act founded in the "spirit of mutual service"?

Mr. President, during the early part of President Wilson's administration there occurred at Mobile, Ala., a meeting of an organization called the Southern Commercial Congress. I should like particularly to call the attention of Senators from Southern States to the words of President Wilson at that time. There were delegates there from all the Southern States and from the countries to the south of them. President Wilson said:

I come because I want to speak of our present and prospective relations with our neighbors to the south. I deemed it a public duty, as well as a personal pleasure, to be here to express for myself and for the Government I represent the welcome we all feel to those who represent the Latin American states.

How is any future President of the United States going to be able to use those words "The welcome we all feel to those who represent Latin American states," when we say to them, as we are asked to do by this bill, "You are no longer our neighbors; you are no more to us than are the countries of Europe; you are to be limited in your intercourse with us just as are the countries across the ocean"?

The future, ladies and gentlemen, is going to be very different for this hemisphere from the past. These states lying to the south of us, which have always been our neighbors, will now be drawn closer to us by innumerable ties.

Is this bill putting them on a quota going to be one of those "innumerable ties" that draw them closer to us? On the contrary, everyone knows that it will be a severance of some of the ties which have been patiently created by the statesmen, the Presidents, and the Secretaries of State of the United States for a hundred years.

These states lying to the south of us, which have always been our neighbors, will now be drawn closer to us by innumerable ties, and I hope, chief of all, by the tie of a common understanding of each other. Interest does not tie nations together; it sometimes separates them. But sympathy and understanding does unite them, and I believe that by the new route that is just about to be opened, while we physically cut two continents asunder, we spiritually unite them. It is a spiritual union which we seek.

And, again, President Wilson said:

That opening gate at the Isthmus of Panama will open the world to a commerce that she has not known before, a commerce of intelligence, of thought and sympathy between North and South.

Mr. President, does this bill show the effect of a "commerce of intelligence, of thought and sympathy, between North and South," or does it show a failure to understand sympathetically the feelings of the people to the south of us, a failure to appreciate the importance of their sympathy and friendship, a willingness to hurt their feelings even without any corresponding gain to ourselves, even if it will interfere with our commerce by making them less friendly to American goods and American people than they have been before? In fact, it is an act of blindness, blindness in so far as it concerns our commerce, blindness in so far as it concerns the feelings of our friends to the south.

To continue from President Wilson's speech to the Southern Commercial Congress:

The dignity, the courage, the self-possession, the self-respect of the Latin American states, their achievements in the face of all these adverse circumstances, deserve nothing but the admiration and applause of the world.

Please note the words, "The self-possession, the self-respect of the Latin American states." The bill which we are asked to pass is a direct blow against their self-respect.

President Wilson continued:

We must prove ourselves their friends and champions upon terms of equality and honor. You can not be friends upon any other terms than upon the terms of equality. You can not be friends at all except upon the terms of honor. We must show ourselves friends by comprehending their interest whether it squares with our own interest or not. It is a very perilous thing to determine the foreign policy of a nation in the terms of material interest.

May I repeat those words, because they apply so directly to the matter before us?—

It is a very perilous thing to determine the foreign policy of a nation in the terms of material interest. It not only is unfair to those with whom you are dealing, but it is degrading as regards your own actions.

Comprehension must be the soil in which shall grow all the fruits of friendship, and there is a reason and a compulsion lying behind all this which is dearer than anything else to the thoughtful men of America. I mean the development of constitutional liberty in the world. Human rights, national integrity, and opportunity as against material interests.

He concluded by saying:

This is not America because it is rich. This is not America because it has set up for a great population great opportunities of material prosperity. America is a name which sounds in the ears of men everywhere as a synonym with individual opportunity because a synonym of individual liberty. I would rather belong to a poor nation that was free than to a rich nation that had ceased to be in love with liberty. But we shall not be poor if we love liberty, because the nation that loves liberty truly sets every man free to do his best and be his best, and that means the release of all the splendid energies of a great people who think for themselves. A nation of employees can not be free any more than a nation of employers can be.

In emphasizing the points which must unite us in sympathy and in spiritual interest with the Latin American peoples we are only emphasizing the points of our own life, and we should prove ourselves untrue to our own traditions if we proved ourselves untrue friends to them.

Do not think, therefore, gentlemen, that the questions of the day are mere questions of policy and diplomacy. They are shot through with the principles of life. We dare not turn from the principle that morality and not expediency is the thing that must guide us and that we will never condone iniquity because it is most convenient to do so.

The words of President Wilson, especially where he said, "You can not have friends at all except upon terms of honor," seem to me peculiarly applicable to the question now before us. We know that this action on our part hurts the feelings of those peoples. We know that it is believed by them to injure their honor. The way in which the bill has been drawn by permitting the free intercourse with the Anglo-Saxon countries to the north of us and extremely restricted intercourse with the Latin countries to the south of us is to give them reason to believe that we do not care to be friends with them. Even if the country to the north of us should be included, the very fact that we are putting them on the same basis as European countries is saying to them that we are no longer interested in Pan Americanism, that we no longer feel like giving them any particular favors, that we no longer feel like cultivating their friendship and sympathy as an American nation, as we have done so many times in the past.

RECESS

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President—

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Connecticut yield to the Senator from Oregon?

Mr. BINGHAM. I yield.

Mr. McNARY. I move that the Senate take a recess until 12 o'clock noon to-morrow.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Connecticut yield for that purpose?

Mr. BINGHAM. I yield for that purpose.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Oregon.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 4 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until to-morrow, Friday, April 11, 1930, at 12 o'clock meridian.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, April 10, 1930

The House was called to order at 12 o'clock noon by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. TILSON].

The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Infinite Father, we thank Thee that when we are in the greatest need Thou art nearest. We praise Thee for all the innumerable mercies which have attended us. Bless our parents who have borne us, our children who dwell in our hearts' desires, and all our households. May all of us live more divinely; lift us high above just physical appetite, empty moralities, and mere contentment, and bless us with lives ever fresh, ever new, extending their horizons of love and understanding. O may we not be unworthy of our calling, but in all fidelity, standing for justice when it is cast down, and always pleading for the liberty and the advancement of mankind. In the blessed name of Jesus. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H. R. 8960) entitled "An act making appropriations for the Departments of State and Justice and for the Judiciary, and for the Departments of Commerce and Labor, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, and for other purposes," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. JONES, Mr. HALE, Mr. KEYES, Mr. BORAH, Mr. OVERMAN, and Mr. HARRIS to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE ALLEGHENY RIVER AT RED HOUSE, N. Y.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair lays before the House the following request from the Senate:

SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,

April 8, 1930.

Ordered, That the House of Representatives be requested to return to the Senate the bill (S. 3607) entitled "An act granting the consent of Congress to the State of New York to construct, maintain, and operate a free State highway bridge across the Allegheny River at or near Red House, N. Y."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the request of the Senate will be granted.

There was no objection.

HOUSE DOCUMENT CONCERNING BATTLES OF KINGS MOUNTAIN AND THE COWPENS

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the action of the House in passing the resolution (H. Res. 158) be vacated and the resolution laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from South Carolina asks unanimous consent that the action of the House in passing the resolution (H. Res. 158) on yesterday be vacated and the resolution laid on the table. Is there objection?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, what is the resolution?

Mr. STEVENSON. It is a resolution to publish 3,000 additional copies of House Document No. 328.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. Speaker, I present on behalf of the Committee on Printing a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 29) to the same effect as the resolution just laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Concurrent Resolution 29

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring). That 3,000 additional copies of House Document No. 328, Seventieth Congress, first session, entitled "Historical Statements Concerning the Battle of King's Mountain and the Battle of the Cowpens in South Carolina," by Lieut. Col. H. D. Landers, be printed with illustrations and bound for the use of the Committee on Printing of the House of Representatives.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of the resolution.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

WORLD WAR VETERANS' LEGISLATION

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I present a privileged report from the Committee on Rules for printing in the RECORD.

The resolution is as follows:

House Resolution 205

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of H. R. 10381, a bill to amend the World War veterans' act, 1924, as amended. That after general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed 12 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on

World War Veterans' Legislation, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule. At the conclusion of the reading of the bill for amendment the committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and the amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Referred to the House Calendar and ordered printed.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, in view of the general interest of the House in this resolution, if the gentleman feels he can do so, I think it would be interesting to have him state the program with reference to the consideration of this rule.

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, in compliance with the request of the gentleman from Alabama, I may say that the privileged report which I have just filed from the Committee on Rules, if adopted, will make in order the consideration of the bill generally known as the Johnson veterans' bill. The resolution provides for 12 hours of general debate, the same to be confined to the bill. I understand the program is to take up this bill for consideration on Tuesday of next week.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PURNELL. I yield to the gentleman from South Dakota.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. The gentleman has said there will be 12 hours of general debate; as a matter of fact, if there is legitimate debate upon the bill that Members of the House desire to continue, there would be no great desire on the part of anyone to restrict the debate, if it were necessary to have another hour or two, so far as the gentleman knows?

Mr. PURNELL. So far as I know, Mr. Speaker, there would be no objection to having full debate upon this subject; and if more time should seem necessary and the House should desire it, I have no doubt the request will be granted.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman from Indiana yield?

Mr. PURNELL. I yield.

Mr. RANKIN. This is the veterans' legislation we have been trying to get to the floor of the House for some time and it is known that at least the minority Members, and perhaps a great many of the Members on the majority side, expect to support an amendment which I expect to offer to extend the presumptive period for men suffering from tuberculosis, or from other chronic constitutional diseases, to January 1, 1930. Can the gentleman from Indiana give us any assurance that this rule will be called up on next Tuesday?

Mr. PURNELL. I will say to the gentleman I am not in position to say definitely that it will be called up on next Tuesday, but I understand that is the tentative program.

Mr. RANKIN. That is the program. Let me say to the gentleman from Indiana, as I understand, it will require the unanimous consent of the House to extend the time for general debate.

Mr. PURNELL. Yes; but the gentleman knows the temper of the House toward all legislation affecting veterans and knows full well that ample opportunity will be given to discuss the question.

Mr. RANKIN. The gentleman will understand I am not criticizing the committee. I think the committee has given ample opportunity for debate.

Mr. PURNELL. I think the committee was very liberal in granting 12 hours of general debate.

Mr. RANKIN. And I will say to the gentleman from Indiana and the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. JOHNSON] that I am not inclined to extend the debate indefinitely, because we want to bring this legislation to the House, thresh it out, pass it, and get rid of it. The disabled veterans need help and need it now.

REDUCTION OF WHEAT ACREAGE

Mr. HOWARD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous permission that I may be permitted to extend my remarks in the RECORD by incorporating therein a statement issued by a distinguished regent of the State University of Nebraska.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOWARD. Mr. Speaker, by gracious privilege of the House so to do, I shall here present a remarkable statement recently made by Hon. Fred A. Marsh, regent of the Nebraska State University, with reference to the demand made upon American farmers by the Federal Farm Board for reduced acreage of wheat. This statement by Regent Marsh appeared in a full-page advertisement, paid for by himself, in the Central City (Nebr.) Republican of April 3, as follows:

[From Central City Republican, Thursday, April 3, 1930]

THE FARM BOARD—THE CHAIN STORE—THE AMERICAN FARMER—THE 3-WAY SWORD

"The bulk of the United States exports of farm implements during 1929 again went to comparatively few markets, 10 countries taking 83 per cent of the $140,801,556 total. This total represents a 21 per cent increase over the preceding year's foreign sales. Canada, Argentina, and Russia remained the chief markets, the last two showing striking gains during the year." (Report, Department of Commerce.)

"What is going to happen eventually, when the cheap lands of Russia, Argentina, Australia, and other countries are farmed with modern American machinery? World-market competition will be the keener, and every major advantage will rest with the foreign competitor. The domestic market of the United States will more and more become the chief reliance of the farmer of the United States, and whether or not he obtains, in his home market, a price that represents something more than the cost of production will depend on how much he raises. Curtailment of acreage in the surplus producing crops is inevitable. Whether it comes with intelligent cooperation with the Federal Farm Board or whether it results from the more painful processes of economic pressure and necessity remains to be seen." (McKelvie's Nebraska Farmer.)

"To the chairman and members of the Ways and Means Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.: The purpose of this brief is to set forth our reasons for asking the committee not to make upward revision in the existing tariff rates, in so far as they affect frozen beef, frozen mutton, and frozen lamb. In presenting this brief we are acting in behalf of the large chain-store organizations, who deal in the above commodities, together with the larger wholesalers and distributors. Any fear of overproduction is unwarranted." Etc. (Brief of certain chain-store organizations dealing in meats.)

Mr. Farmer: The above 3-way sword is something for you to consider. As though the high-pressure exportation of American-made machinery was not enough to undermine you with the conditions threatened by Mr. McKelvie, the chain stores are insisting in the halls of your American Congress for the right to import foreign meats—meats that would require much of your surplus grains if produced in America.

Mr. Farmer: How much does an American binder or tractor cost you? How much does the same American binder cost the Russian, the Gringo, or the Australian?

Mr. American Farmer: Are you required by threat to raise less, while the foreigner, using the same make of farm machinery, is being encouraged to increase his acreage and the use of American machinery? If the world's price is depressed by thus opening foreign fields, don't we have to have more bushels at a less price than when the price was greater? The Farm Board's advice as to restricted world output will not be religiously followed in Russia. It is not likely that the exporters of American farm machinery to foreign fields are imposing any such advice at this time.

Citizens: We are already feeling some of the economic pressure and necessity spoken of by Mr. McKelvie, of the Farm Board. Not the least is the chain-store importations of millions of pounds of meat and meat products, thus doing away with our home market for our own grain in the production of our own meat. Terrific is the economic pressure of such importations, wiping out American wholesalers, jobbers, and their American-manned organizations, while the Farm Board, in a manner that has left but a train of more and greater depressed prices after their every idiotic action, is unmanaging the staple methods of handling our grain.

The Farm Board's efforts to soviet the raising and handling of farm products in America will come true if they are not curbed. All liberty of the American farmer will be annulled by a drastic policy of "co-operatively" controlled acreage. Listlessly and with no spirit, but at a depressed figure always, the grain will follow a beaten path from the farm direct to the Government-controlled "cooperative" elevators of the Farm Board suzerainty.

We have just gone through the horrors of a banking commission trying to administer our banking business. Must we now endure the same agonies in regard to our American-raised grain with this swashbuckling Farm Board?

FRED A. MARSH,

Farmer, Regent Nebraska State University, Archer, Nebr.

Regent Marsh lives in my own home county. He is a bona fide farmer. He is also a long-time student in that practical school wherein students endeavor to learn somewhat of the science of government. It is quite evident that Regent Marsh is not wholly in sympathy with the plan of the chairman of the Federal Farm Board to reduce the wheat acreage in America, while at the same time encouraging increased wheat acreage in Russia and other foreign lands by shipping harvesting and other farm machinery of his own manufacture to foreign farmers, and selling that machinery to the foreigners at a price less than farmers here at home must pay for the same machinery.

While my first object in presenting the remarkable statement by Regent Marsh is to show to the country the fact that the Farm Board plan to decrease wheat acreage in America, while at the same time increasing acreage in Russia by giving the farmers over there farm machinery at less cost than American farmers must pay for like machinery, is not winning hilarious approval in the Middle West, my next and best object is to call attention to the solemn fact that the Harvester Trust could not sell farm machinery to foreign farmers at a lower price than American farmers must pay for the same machinery save only by grace of our tariff system.

Yes; I know that farm machinery is on the free list, but I also know that iron and steel, the principal materials in all farm machinery, bear a sky-high tariff tax, directly for the benefit of the Steel Trust but incidentally of vast benefit to the Harvester Trust. I am personally fond of Alex Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, and also president of the mighty Harvester Trust, but I would love him the more if he would be kind enough to explain just how he hopes to raise the price of wheat in the United States by decreasing the wheat acreage, while at the same time selling Harvester Trust farm machinery to Russian farmers at a lower price than our home farmers must pay for such machinery, thereby encouraging the foreign farmers to increase their wheat acreage.

Alex Legge is a very busy man right now. Perhaps he may not be able to find time in which to explain just how he intends to do it. However, I will respectfully entertain an explanation of this great problem by any Member of the United States Congress familiar with both the language and the plans of the tariff barons.

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AND THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the special order of the House the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. COYLE] is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. COYLE. Mr. Speaker, I make this appearance before the House for the purpose of bringing to the attention of the Members and the people of the District of Columbia certain facts relative to the relationship which has existed between the people of the District of Columbia and the Congress of the United States over a period of 129 years.

All of the people of all of the States of the Union have an immense pride in the District of Columbia and very high aspirations for the development of the District along the lines of proper government and fine esthetic progress. In the Constitution itself section 8 provided that the Congress was to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such District, and even to this day many people in many parts of the country suppose that the Congress itself pays the expenses of administering the District of Columbia, assuming, perhaps, that the obligation to pay goes with the right to govern. This, of course, is an erroneous impression, for which there is yet some color of reason. In one form or another for 129 years it has been governed by the Congress of the United States, although for the first 75 years the people of the District of Columbia had much more voice in the laying of their taxes and in the spending of that tax money than they have had in the last 50 years.

In going over the long series of statutes which have from time to time sought to institute a more satisfactory relationship between the people of the District and the Congress, I find a few high lights of interest.

Mr. Speaker, I ask permission to extend my remarks by including at this point certain lists of statutory enactments of the Congress in relation to the subject, which I am not going to read to the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. COYLE. In 1790, on the 16th of July, the Congress, then sitting at Philadelphia, determined the general location of the District to be at a point on the Potomac River between the Eastern Branch and the mouth of the Connogochegue. The laws of the States of Maryland and Virginia were—to be continued within such District until the time fixed for the removal of the Government and until Congress shall otherwise by law provide.

In 1801 the location of the District was determined exactly; the laws of Maryland and Virginia were continued in effect, applying to the parts ceded by the two States, respectively, and the District as it then existed was divided into two counties, Washington and Alexandria Counties. In the further study of enactments, I am going to omit, as far as possible, that part which was located on the south bank of the Potomac—Alexandria County—and which was ceded back to the State of Virginia in 1846 and thereafter ceased to be a part of the District.

From 1801 until 1878, under varying rules of appointment and election, the District of Columbia, the city of Washington, and the city of Georgetown were given varying measures of local self-government, power to levy and collect taxes, power to make appropriations, power to elect the lower house of their assembly, and the power in 1805 for the assembly in Georgetown to elect its mayor.

In 1812 the title of the corporation of the city of Washington was changed to "the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city of Washington," the mayor being elected annually by the aldermen and council. In 1820 the provision was changed to require that the mayor be elected biennially by the voters of the city. This law was to run for 20 years, but ran for 28 years and was then continued for the 8 years which had passed since it had lapsed.

Changes in 1826, 1842, 1856, and 1862, and again in 1863 and in 1864, altered in some measure the method of taxation, the power of appropriation, the appointment of the assessors or levy courts, and the qualification of the voters. In 1867 the franchise was extended to the colored residents, and in 1869 all distinctions on account of race were obliterated through eliminating the word "white" in all laws relating to the District, Washington or Georgetown, where those laws limited or restricted civil rights.

In 1871 the governor was made a presidential appointee, subject to Senate confirmation, with a term of four years, and at this same time the upper house of the local legislature, consisting of 11 members, was appointed by the President and the lower house of 22 members was elected by the voters. This legislature had broad local powers, although there were some specific restrictions, and it was always held to be subject to the restriction of the tenth amendment to the Constitution. At this time the District was allowed a Delegate to the United States House of Representatives, to be elected biennially by the voters. This power to have a Delegate to the Congress, which is being at present so much discussed by the people of the District, existed from 1871 to 1874, when the law was repealed.

The distinction of being the Delegate—the only one to represent the District of Columbia in Congress—fell to the lot of a rather distinguished gentleman, Hon. Norton Parker Chipman, a brigadier general of the Union Army, who had settled in Washington after the Civil War. He served through the Forty-second and Forty-third Congresses; apparently was an active and valuable Member of the House, and performed a service for his constituency. After his office was abolished, I find that he moved to California. He occupied an honored place in the judiciary through a long and active life and until 1924, when he died at the age of 90 years. Since he left no successor to his title in the Congress, I think it likely that his death passed without the usual notice which this House, in its courtesy, gives to the passing of its former Members.

Mr. HALE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COYLE. I will.

Mr. HALE. Does the gentleman say that the authority for the District to have a Delegate was granted by the congressional enactment?

Mr. COYLE. It was expressly granted by congressional action and not by amendment to the Constitution.

It is probably unfortunate from a point of view of study and comparison that this particular period should have included that period of financial panic of the early seventies. Certain it is that the government of the District of Columbia as of that time came in for much comment, much criticism, and long and protracted investigation on petition presented among others by the late W. W. Corcoran, himself a distinguished benefactor of Washington, in whose memory the Corcoran Art Gallery stands as a lasting monument. For the purpose of this résumé it is, however, sufficient to say that in 1874 the right of the District of Columbia to have a Delegate in Congress was by Congress changed.

The government of the District had undoubtedly arrived at a rather serious financial situation. The charity of a later day may—indeed, must—attribute much of it to the serious financial condition of the country as a whole. The necessity for immense public works, which had been theretofore long neglected and had in that period made great progress, probably also contributed to the dissatisfaction with conditions.

The act of 1874, a congressional enactment, provided for a commission of three persons to be appointed by the President and to exercise the powers theretofore vested in the governor and the board of public works, including taxation, appointments, and so forth. At this time an Engineer officer was detailed in charge of public works, subject to the control of the commissioners.

In 1878 the change—which has continued in effect until the present time—whereby the President appoints three commissioners, two of them to be confirmed by the Senate and the third one to be an Engineer officer detailed to the duty by the President, was adopted.

It is interesting to note parenthetically that this enactment in 1878 left a number of matters rather undetermined. Among others, the matter of the administration of the water supply, which has been subject to considerable legislation and discussion from that time to this, was left very much "up in the air" then, and in some ways is still a bone of contention between the people of the District of Columbia and the Congress.

In 1887 some additional police regulative authority was given to the commissioners, and in 1898 and by various enactments since then the park system has been removed from the authority of the commissioners and put under—in the beginning—the Chief of Engineers of the Army, and later under the engineer commissioner and the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks. In addition, since 1878, a public service commission has been appointed, with some joint responsibility to the President and to the Congress. A zoning commission, consisting of the District Commissioners, the Architect of the Capitol, and the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, has been constituted, with some broad authority; of course, again with the same dual responsibility.

In 1878, when the Congress took over all responsibility for the administration of all the laws in the District of Columbia, it assumed responsibility for the debt of the District of Columbia and agreed to pay toward the administrative expenses of the District 50 per cent of the annual total. This 50-50 basis was established in 1878 and remained the law until 1922, when a 60-40 basis was assumed, by which the District paid 60 per cent and the Congress 40 per cent. This is still the "permanent law" on the subject, but it is a law which has been more honored in the breach than in the observance, and each year since 1924—two years after the passage of the 60-40 basis—Congress has appropriated annually $9,000,000 and the remainder of the expenditures has come from the taxes of the District of Columbia. The people's part has varied in percentage between 60 per cent and 80 per cent, according as the total annual expenditure increased or diminished.

This somewhat exhaustive statistical résumé, with which I have dealt at such considerable length, is not raised in particular criticism of the present or any past law but solely for the purpose of bringing to your attention the very considerable volume of legislation which has been enacted and the very varying degree of local autonomy which has been granted to or taken away from the people of the District without their representation in the law-making body.

There is to-day in the minds of many people in the District and in Congress a rather firmly fixed impression that the people of the District of Columbia should come back to their early status, when they had a larger part in local self-government. Prior to 1878, when the Federal Government paid what amounted to a tax assessment on their property owned within the District of Columbia, the power to levy and collect taxes and to make appropriations was not thought to be specifically within the province of the Congress. Through much of this period, no doubt, the tax contribution on the part of the Federal Government was oftentimes in excess of one-half of the total tax collected, and it was only when the Congress assumed the special obligation to meet with dollar for dollar the tax money collected from the people of the District of Columbia that the Congress also undertook full responsibility for detail of legislation. In these later years, when the Congress has again taken the early position where it makes a flat contribution in lieu of a tax levy, amounting to $9,000,000 annually, it would seem, perhaps, only fair for the Congress to consider divesting itself of part of its responsibility regarding tax levies and appropriations.

The Congress to-day can have no financial interest in the decrease or increase of expenditures by the District of Columbia. If the pay of the firemen or policemen is to be raised under the present existing plan, the people of the District will pay the entire cost of the raise or save the entire reduction. It seems, as a consequence, rather a far cry for the Congress to pass on each detail of this legislation, financial or regulatory.

Would it not be advisable at this time for the Congress to consider this situation and the rights of the people of the District and the best interests of the District in relation to further legislation? Would it not be advisable to do this through a specially constituted joint committee appointed for the purpose by the House and Senate?

Mr. FORT. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COYLE. I will yield.

Mr. FORT. Are the public buildings here in the District—the District of Columbia Building and other public buildings—paid for by the $9,000,000 contributed by the Government and the amount raised by taxation, or are they paid for by special appropriation of Congress?

Mr. COYLE. The construction of the buildings which have to do with the administration of affairs of the District of Columbia are paid for out of appropriations by Congress for the District to which appropriations the Congress makes a flat contribution of $9,000,000.

Mr. FORT. There is no special appropriation in addition for the construction of the buildings?

Mr. COYLE. As far as I know there is no separate appropriation on the part of Congress for any building in the District of Columbia except those solely for Federal purposes.

Mr. FORT. And there are no bonds or outstanding debts of the District?

Mr. COYLE. No; there was a debt of twelve or fifteen million at the time Congress took over the administration of affairs in 1878, and undertook to pay off that debt.

Mr. STOBBS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COYLE. I will yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. STOBBS. Is the gentleman arguing for local self-government in the District or for District representation here in Congress?

Mr. COYLE. The gentleman feels that he is arguing for a study of the present existing conditions in relation to past history to determine whether or not anything should be done by the Congress to give the people of the District of Columbia more to say in their local affairs rather than in national affairs.

Mr. STOBBS. The gentleman understands that there have been hearings for several years past before the House Judiciary Committee as to what representation should be given to people in the District in Congress?

Mr. COYLE. My impression was that the hearings were to determine whether or not the people of the District of Columbia should be given representation in national affairs rather than in local affairs.

Mr. STOBBS. Indirectly the argument is made that that would give them a representation in their own affairs.

Mr. COYLE. My study has led me to believe that they would be better off and better satisfied if they had representation here without a vote here, and which I expect to develop in the latter part of my remarks.

Mr. COLE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COYLE. Yes.

Mr. COLE. With reference to the question put by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. FORT], if when we embark on a new building, will not the appropriation call for an additional amount on the part of the United States Government, increasing the $9,000,000 contribution?

Mr. COYLE. I think that is a reasonable suggestion. If we are going to extend the area and value of Federal buildings, we should proportionately increase our contribution.

Mr. COLE. I think so.

Mr. LOZIER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COYLE. Yes.

Mr. LOZIER. The gentleman referred to the fact that there was an indebtedness of about $12,000,000 against the District at the time Congress reassumed the control of the District in 1878. That indebtedness was incurred during the time the District had local self-government, and it was under the Shepherd régime, which was reputed to have been one of the most prodigal in the history of American municipalities, and results were so unsatisfactory that the people of the District in desperation petitioned Congress to take over again the affairs of the District. The gentleman is familiar with the history of that period, is he not?

Mr. COYLE. I almost lived through that period in the District of Columbia. I have carefully read the hearings before that committee in 1874. There was a considerable debt. The administration was much criticized. In justice to it, however, and with the charity which follows after 50 years, let us say that prior to that administration Washington streets had been a streak of mud, and that at the end of that administration, although there was a debt of a considerable amount in proportion to the then taxable property, they had accomplished a very considerable street-paving program and the initiation of the sewer program, and the District had been without either theretofore.

Mr. LOZIER. The gentleman speaks about the number of mud streets in the District at the time Congress granted the District of Columbia local self-government. There was not a larger proportion of unpaved streets and unsewered districts in the District of Columbia at that time than there were in similar cities all over the country? That was before the age of extensive street paving and before sewerage systems were as universal as in later years.

Mr. COYLE. The comparison is a difficult one to make. I am looking at that administration with the eyes of charity, which come after 50 years to all of us.

Fifty years ago, when the Congress paid half of the bill, there was a more reasonable excuse than exists at the present time for their entire control over expenditures. To-day the people of the District of Columbia pay four-fifths of the bill for administering the affairs of the District, and there is no similar area, no comparable amount of income, no equal number of people anywhere under the American flag who have so little voice as have the people of the District in those matters dear to the American heart which concern the right of taxation and appropriation.

I would like to see a committee constituted in some way similar to the way I have suggested. I would like to suggest for the consideration of that committee a plan, which I advance now as being at least thought provocative, as was suggested by my colleague from New York [Mr. DAVENPORT] in his able address concerning legislation and the necessity for delegating under proper control some of the multifarious duties of the individual Member of Congress. It was the contribution made by Mr. DAVENPORT, followed by the one made by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LUCE], which has in some measure impelled my own suggestion to-day. I would like to suggest to this committee that the Board of Commissioners of the District be increased to five, that two be appointed by the President and one designated from among the Army engineer officers by the President, as at present, and that the two additional members be nominated from a list of not more than five to be supplied to the President by the people of the District of Columbia, and that these two, when so nominated and confirmed, might perhaps sit in this branch of Congress, with an appointment similar to a Resident Commissioner's, to be the voice of the people of the District on the floor of Congress.

Perhaps they should also sit as members of the Board of District Commissioners. Perhaps to this board should be delegated, subject always to congressional approval, many of the powers to legislate which are now vested in the Congress. Perhaps the annual budget and tax levy of the District of Columbia should be drawn up by this board of five commissioners and submitted by them to the Congress, to lie on the Speaker's table for 60 days after the convening of the Congress, and if not amended or disapproved by direct action, then to be transmitted to the Senate as having been passed by the House.

Why should we of the Congress determine the rate of pay of the firemen and policemen of the District when we are making a flat annual contribution of nine millions and all additional money must come from the taxpayers of the District? There was, perhaps, some color of reason back of such legislation on the part of Congress when Congress made a percentage contribution to these annual expenditures, but I submit there is no color of reason back of vesting such detail determination in the Congress under present existing conditions.

My own personal opinion, for what it is worth, is submitted to the effect that Congress should either go back to the definite 60-40 basis, or else concede to the people of the District real control over their own income and expenditures for local governmental purposes.

I am more and more convinced as time goes on of the good will of the people of the country toward the District of Columbia and its people. I am more and more convinced of the existence of a very good will on the part of the Members of Congress toward the people of the District, but one fact comes home to me in addition to these two that is insistent and which will be recognized by every other Member, and that is that a very large part of the time of all Members is, by force of circumstances, to-day given to more or less routine matters.

For the Congress, in addition to its other duties, to continue to act on the routine matters that would fall under the head of "town council" for the District of Columbia seems to me to be a relic of the dark ages. The very history of the relationship between the Congress and the District gives evidence of the fact that legislation has often been passed, and almost as often repealed, without it being possible to take into consideration the rights of the District, or, indeed, the economic soundness of the legislation.

Mr. CLARK of Maryland. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COYLE. Yes.

Mr. CLARK of Maryland. Is there a budgetary system in the District government?

Mr. COYLE. Without doubt, and it comes from the Director of the Federal Budget and goes to the Appropriations Committee of the Congress as does the budget for any Federal department.

I am firmly convinced that a committee designated in the manner I have suggested, for the purpose I have suggested, should carefully pass on the necessities of legislation and on the kind of legislation which should be enacted, in order to avoid in the future the dangers and difficulties which have encumbered the road in the years gone by. I submit for your serious consideration, that the change that has come about in the fiscal relationship that exists between the Congress and the people of the District of Columbia makes advisable a change in the legislative relationship between the two, and it should be effected as soon as it can be carefully considered. I submit that this change is rendered the more imperative by virtue of the increasing demands made upon the time of the Congress and of its Members.

Finally I submit that fair justice to these people of the District would require that those "inalienable" rights, now long since alienated, should be returned into the custody of the people themselves, and the Congress restore to them a real measure of local autonomy and cease, once and for all, to countenance and perpetuate a system that often verges on that tyranny, said of old by the fathers to be the result of taxation without representation.

CONSOLIDATION OF ACTIVITIES AFFECTING WAR VETERANS

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 10630) to authorize the President to consolidate and coordinate governmental activities affecting war veterans.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H. R. 10630, with Mr. HALE in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I regret to do it at this time, but on account of the importance of this bill I think we ought to have a quorum present to hear the discussion. We discussed the bill at length for an hour or two a day or two ago, and had hardly anyone here to listen to the discussion. I make the point of order that there is no quorum present.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Carolina makes the point of order that there is no quorum present. The Chair will count. [After counting.] One hundred and two Members present, a quorum.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CRAMTON].

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, in the limited time I have, I will ask that I be not interrupted, as I fear I can not say what I want to say in this time.

I have no desire to attack any agency in anything I have to say. I prefer to look at this for a few minutes from the standpoint of certain principles and objectives.

I have had the responsibility for 8 or 10 years of handling the appropriations for the Bureau of Pensions, and naturally I have had some very close contact with the work of that bureau. I am entirely opposed to any union or consolidation or absorption process as between the Veterans' Bureau and the Bureau of Pensions. [Applause.] In the first place, such consolidation as is proposed in this bill does not mean a saving, but it means a great increase in the cost of administration. [Applause.]

The Veterans' Bureau is not operated as economically as the Bureau of Pensions. I do not believe it is operated as efficiently. All sorts of arguments are advanced as to who will become the head of this new administration, but whoever it will be the tail is not going to wag the dog, and for every dollar that is expended in the Bureau of Pensions there is a thousand dollars expended in the Veterans' Bureau. The same applies as to personnel. Whoever becomes the chief of this new activity is going to give his major thought to the Veterans' Bureau. What time is left will go to the Bureau of Pensions.

It will not result in a saving of money, but increased expenditures for the work in the Bureau of Pensions.

Next, by reason of the facts which I have just stated, that the personnel involved and the personnel employed and the money expended is much less in the one than in the other, the Bureau of Pensions will be in the background and the welfare of the Civil War veterans and their dependents and the welfare of the Spanish-American War veterans and their dependents will not have the consideration from this new organization that they get to-day from the Bureau of Pensions.

The conclusion can not be avoided that if one administrator is to conduct these two great activities the most definite basis that could be desired by anyone to put the World War veterans on a pension basis will be established. It is impossible to pay, through the same office, one man a pension and the other compensation and conduct it successfully in the years to come. It means that a foundation is being laid for a pension system with reference to the World War veterans.

I am proceeding hurriedly in my limited time.

When the Forbes scandal came before the country, Members of Congress universally took the position that they did not want any more independent bureaus. I know that from private conversation with various Members. The Members wished that the Veterans' Bureau was not an independent bureau because independent bureaus are directly under the President, and naturally the President can not give his personal attention to them, and there is no supervision whatever. It is said that the Veterans' Bureau is such a large institution that it needs the dignity of standing by itself. If that is true, let it be made another Cabinet office, if you please. It should certainly not be loose with no supervision whatever. In my opinion the Veterans' Bureau should be under some Cabinet head in the interest of best administration. Please understand there is not a word of criticism in what I say of General Hines. I have entire confidence in his integrity.

I am discussing this not from the basis of personalities but from the basis of principle. Even if we are obliged to leave the Veterans' Bureau as an independent bureau, it is not necessary to bring in agencies that are now supervised by Cabinet officers and increase the powers and responsibilities of that independent bureau.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman five additional minutes.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CRAMTON. I yield.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman from Michigan please state the salaries paid in the Pension Bureau?

Mr. CRAMTON. I would not like to mention that figure offhand, because I can not give it accurately.

I will say frankly that in what I am saying I have not had an opportunity to read the hearings or make a study in detail of this bill, but I am speaking of general principles based on my experience of some years in connection with the Bureau of Pensions.

It is stated that this bureau is so large and important that it ought to be an independent bureau. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue renders important decisions. I remember Secretary Mellon once saying that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue from time to time made decisions as important as the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. Yet that bureau gets along as one of the bureaus in the Treasury Department. I do not believe that anything will be gained by this consolidation.

I understand an amendment is to be offered providing that the Bureau of Pensions shall be protected. The amendment contains substantially this language, that nothing in subsection (b) of section 1 shall be taken to authorize the abolition of the Bureau of Pensions. I do not recall the exact language.

It will be noted from reading section 1 that there is to be an establishment known as the administration of veterans' affairs, and that to this new establishment is to be transferred the duties and powers and functions now vested by law in certain existing agencies. Can anyone reading that section doubt that under the direction of the President this administrator of veterans' affairs shall have the power to consolidate, eliminate, and redistribute the functions of the various bureaus, agencies, and so forth? No one can doubt but what the Bureau of Pensions will sink into a most minor and subordinate rôle, and even the protective amendment that is going to be proposed will not save the situation. The activities of the bureau will be partly, from time to time, taken away from the Bureau of Pensions.

The amendment only provides that the Bureau of Pensions is to continue its existence, but it does not insure that the authority will remain in the Bureau of Pensions. As a matter of fact, this bill explicitly takes the authority out of the bureau and vests the final say as to all of these matters in the administrator of veterans' affairs.

I just want to reiterate that the passage of this legislation will cause the bureau handling all matters relating to Civil War veterans and their dependents and Spanish-American War veterans and their dependents to become a minor affair in the administration of veterans' affairs.

The great problems of veterans of the World War are so numerous, so extensive, and so far-reaching that the head of this bureau will give his first thought to the World War veterans and what time is left to the others. For one—although the World War veterans are more numerous—I am not ready to say that the veterans of the Civil War and the Spanish-American War are to take a position subordinate to that of the World War veterans.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CRAMTON. I yield.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Will it not have this result?—Under the present bill the duties now vested in the Secretary of the Interior will be assumed by the director of the new bureau. Can the gentleman believe that the Secretary of the Interior, with his multiplicity of problems and the great number of departments under him, can give any more consideration to the Pension Bureau personally than the director of this new activity would give to it?

Mr. CRAMTON. I get the gentleman's question. No one now expects the Secretary of the Interior to take any active part in the administration of the Bureau of Pensions. The determination of policy is almost entirely in the hands of the Commissioner of Pensions. Congress knows the Bureau of Pensions; Congress sees the work of the Bureau of Pensions; Congress can judge of the work of that bureau; and we do not regard the Secretary of the Interior as the active head as we must regard this new official. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has again expired.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. SCHAFER].

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, first I want to answer the last statement of the distinguished gentleman who has preceded me. We know that section 2, chapter 1, title 38, United States Code, reads as follows:

The Commissioner of Pensions shall perform, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, such duties in the execution of the various pension laws as may be prescribed by the President.

So you can readily see that the transfer of the Pension Bureau to this new Government activity, which will handle all veterans' affairs, will not have the result of subordinating the affairs of the veterans who are beneficiaries of the Pension Bureau.

Mr. Chairman, the Secretary of the Interior, under the law, has jurisdiction and authority in pension matters. The provisions of this consolidation bill will transfer that authority to the director of the new bureau. Can anyone, with any candor and frankness, say that the veterans who are the beneficiaries under the Pension Bureau will have less personal consideration on the part of the chief administrative officer under the new set-up, when we take into consideration the multiplicity of bureaus and numerous activities administered under the Secretary of the Interior, including St. Elizabeths Hospital. One of the reasons why I could not support a consolidation of veterans' affairs under the Secretary of the Interior is that I do not want the Veterans' Bureau hospitals and the soldiers' homes hospitals to come under the Interior Department and have the same close consideration and cooperation of the Secretary of the Interior that St. Elizabeths Hospital has had.

With the multitude of bureaus and duties now under the Secretary of the Interior it is impossible for the Secretary to keep in close contact with the operations of such hospitals and other veterans' problems. A director under the consolidation as provided in the pending bill would manifestly give better personal consideration to the veterans' problems.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Yes.

Mr. CRAMTON. My criticism is based on section 2 of the bill. Not only is the authority of the Secretary of the Interior transferred to this new official but section 2 charges him with all the administrative duties relating to the Bureau of Pensions and provides that—

All final decisions or orders of any division, bureau, or board in the administration of veterans' affairs shall be subject to review, on appeal, by such administrator.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Absolutely; and those decisions are now subject to review by the Secretary of the Interior when it comes to questions relating to the Pension Bureau beneficiaries.

The hearings indicate that the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Disabled American Veterans at their national conventions have passed resolutions in favor of putting all veterans' activities under one head; namely, the creation of a new Cabinet officer to handle the veterans' problems. Personally I favor that proposition, and this bill is a long step in that direction. While the pending bill does not centralize the handling of all veterans' affairs under a Cabinet officer it does centralize them under a new bureau directly under the President of the United States. We can reasonably assume that the President will appoint an administrator for the new bureau who has just as good qualifications as a Cabinet officer. Such administrator certainly can give more careful, sympathetic, and personal consideration to the veterans' problems than a present Cabinet officer who has a multitude of bureaus under him and many duties to perform.

Mr. KNUTSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. I yield.

Mr. KNUTSON. A comparison between the operation of a bureau where one man gives his entire time to it and another bureau where the head can not give all of his time to it does not warrant the gentleman in making the statement he has just made, and he knows it.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. I will state it does warrant such a statement, and as far as many of the statements the gentleman has made in opposition to this bill is concerned there are no reasonable grounds to compare the work of the Pension Bureau and the work of the Veterans' Bureau any more than you can compare day and night. We know that as to most of the Pension Bureau cases it is merely a matter of routine. When you pension Spanish War widows under the act of May 1, 1926, or grant pensions to widows of Civil War veterans they go on the pay roll and those cases are closed. It then becomes merely a matter of sending out the checks each month.

Many thousands of the Indian, Civil, and Spanish War veterans' claims become stationary in so far as adjudication is concerned upon completion of the first allowance by the Pension Bureau. But in the Veterans' Bureau claims under laws enacted by Congress, where Congress sets up specific requirements before payments can be made, and Congress specifically provides for three or four appeals, it is a different proposition. Very few Veterans' Bureau claims become stationary in so far as adjudication is concerned. Furthermore the question of service connection under laws enacted by Congress enters into consideration of every Veterans' Bureau compensation claim as well as the application of a very intricate rating schedule.

The nature and scope of the laws under which the Veterans' Bureau operates is such that no fair comparison can be made between the operation of the Pension and Veterans' Bureaus. The laws under which these two bureaus operate and the scope of their activities are as different as day is from night.

Mr. GASQUE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Yes.

Mr. GASQUE. As I understand the gentleman's remarks, he seems to favor this bill. I want to know how the gentleman will get together on this statement he made in the hearings.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. I will yield to the distinguished gentleman from South Carolina so that he may quote a statement of mine appearing in the hearings, and I shall be pleased to answer his question.

Mr. GASQUE. I want to state that the gentleman, during the hearings, seemed to be opposed to the very principle upon which this bill is founded, and I note now he is arguing in favor of this bill, which I think everyone will admit delegates more power to one head than any other act ever passed by the Congress. The gentleman at the hearings made this statement:

I do not believe in granting to one man, even though I am a supporter of his, the arbitrary power to perform duties vested in Congress as a legislative body, particularly when it affects many millions of disabled World War veterans who bled for our country in the time of its wars.

The gentleman must have changed his mind.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. No; the gentleman has not changed his mind on that specific proposition. If the gentleman will read the entire hearings he will find that the gentleman from Wisconsin did considerable cross-examining in order to develop the complete facts on this highly controversial consolidation proposition. I had in mind the proposition which the gentleman advocated during the committee hearings, the purpose of the original bill, which gave the President of the United States authority to consolidate all of these veterans' activities without having any strings on the consolidation. The bill which we have before us does not do this, because it creates a new bureau. We define the policy of consolidation, meeting almost entirely the desires of the great organizations of war veterans.

I realize the difference of views on this question of consolidation. After carefully studying the testimony and after attending each meeting of the committee I reached a conclusion it was a matter of give and take on some of the propositions, because with the various conflicting views on this consolidation between the witnesses, between the departments, and between the members of the committee it was just as impossible to report a bill out that was entirely satisfactory to everybody concerned as it would be to obtain a unanimous vote of this Congress to repeal the sumptuary prohibition laws.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Yes.

Mr. RANKIN. The gentleman spoke of St. Elizabeths Hospital. Having investigated that institution at one time, of course I sympathize with that part of the gentleman's speech; but I am a little surprised to hear the gentleman say we can not get St. Elizabeths Hospital cleaned up under the present Secretary of the Interior. What is the matter down there?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Well, I am not defending the present Secretary of the Interior on his administration of St. Elizabeths Hospital. If I were Secretary of the Interior I would give Doctor White his walking papers with one stroke of the pen and would be doing a good service to the taxpayers and people of the country. I would also demand that the Attorney General bring a court action to collect from the said Doctor White the many thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money which he has received for maintenance, and personal servants, in violation of law.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Yes; I yield further.

Mr. RANKIN. In view of the reluctant attitude of the Veterans' Bureau when we were investigating St. Elizabeths Hospital with reference to their abuse of the insane disabled veterans who were incarcerated there does the gentleman think the Veterans' Bureau would be any more diligent in cleaning it up?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. The Veterans' Bureau hospitals speak for themselves and answer your question. The Veterans' Bureau operates some of the finest hospitals in the country. You do not find the heads of Veterans' Bureau hospitals receiving thousands of dollars each year for maintenance and personal servants in violation of law. Neither do you find them traveling across the continent to testify as experts to save the necks of vicious millionaires, such as Leopold and Loeb, from the noose.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Wisconsin has expired.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCormack].

Mr. McCormack of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, after closely studying the bill and the accompanying report of the committee and after listening attentively to the arguments presented by the proponents and opponents of the pending legislation, I can not escape the feeling that the ultimate results, if this bill should become law, would be the abolition of the Bureau of Pensions. I can not, at this time, subscribe to any legislation that will tend to bring about such a result.

I realize that distinguished Members of this body have urged that such is not the purpose of this bill, and I agree with them, but irrespective as to what the purpose may be, the operation of such a law, as contemplated in the pending bill, will result in such a condition. In considering pending legislation, Members are justified in weighing their common experiences and also matters which are generally known to each other. During my service as a Member of Congress I have had occasion to interest myself in matters affecting my constituents that brought me in close contact with both the Bureau of Pensions and the Veterans' Bureau. My experiences with the Bureau of Pensions have been most pleasing. I have found that bureau rendering the highest type of prompt and efficient service to the veterans of the several wars that it serves, to wit, veterans of the Indian Wars, Civil War, and the Spanish-American War, with possibly a few widows of veterans of the War of 1812 still on the pension rolls. In any event, it serves the veterans and widows and dependents of deceased veterans of all wars other than the World War. The work of the Bureau of Pensions is done quietly, effectively, quickly, without any unnecessary red tape, and the approval or disapproval of a claim for pension or claim for an increase of a pension is promptly made. The bureau, in the event that a claim for a pension or an increase is disallowed, has liberal rules which allow the filing of another application within a reasonable time.

It also assists in every way possible veteran claimants to prepare and file the necessary application, which is simple in form. This record of service and achievement has been enjoyed by the Bureau of Pensions for many years. I can not see my way clear to vote for any bill which is likely to disturb the continued rendering of such efficient service; at least, to vote for any bill that, in my opinion, will absorb and ultimately destroy the Pension Bureau.

While the work of the Veterans' Bureau, which serves veterans of the World War, is more varied than that of the Bureau of Pensions and probably more complicated, I am sorry to say that my experiences with that bureau have not been as pleasing as has been my experiences with the Pension Bureau. I do not use the word "pleasing" in a personal sense, that one bureau went out of their way to please me personally and the other did not; but what I mean is that feeling of satisfaction with the knowledge, gained by experience and the application of whatever legal knowledge I possess, together with 17 years of the practice of law, that a bureau or department in making judgments and awards in accordance with recognized principles of law and the intent of Congress when it passed veterans' legislation. If there is one class of legislation that Congress and the American people want interpreted most favorably, it is the legislation that has been passed affecting veterans of the various wars in which we have been engaged. In making any references during this debate to the Veterans' Bureau I do so impersonally.

My personal contact with individuals who are in the service of the Government in the Veterans' Bureau has always been pleasant. So far as I am concerned, such feelings will continue to exist on my part. However, I can not overlook that a system has slowly developed in the Veterans' Bureau the continued operation of which is not consistent with the best interests of veterans of the World War. It is this system which I contrast with that which exists in the Bureau of Pensions.

There is one argument advanced in opposition to the passage of this bill to which I can not subscribe. I refer to the argument of the relative cost in the administration of both bureaus. I realize that the Bureau of Pensions functions at a very low cost to the Government, which ultimately are the taxpayers. I also realize that the mere reading of the relative cost of the Veterans' Bureau, without some explanation, would make one inclined to feel that it is unusually high, particularly when it is contrasted with the Bureau of Pensions. It has many activities imposed upon it by law which are expensive to conduct. Its activities in connection with investigating claims, adjudication of claims, its wide hospital service, the duties of administering the adjusted compensation act, with consequent banking business, together with conducting the largest insurance business in the United States, if not in the whole world, make for expense, and as a result the overhead must of necessity be and appear large.

I can not group myself with those who criticize the Veterans' Bureau because of its expense of administration. My objections to this bill go beyond the question of expense of administration. It involves the question of results which flow to the veterans from the operation of both bureaus. I am also concerned with the question as to whether or not a consolidation is necessary and advisable at this time. Also, in the event of a consolidation, which will ultimately mean the absorption and abolition of either the Veterans' Bureau or the Bureau of Pensions, whether it would not be advisable to wait until Congress has enacted a final, definite policy with reference to World War veterans before such legislation is considered and passed. In the event of a general pension bill being passed relating to World War veterans, having in mind the character of service rendered by the Pension Bureau, it might be advisable when that time arrives to reside the determination and administration of World War pension awards in the Bureau of Pensions.

My experiences with the Veterans' Bureau, I have stated, have not been pleasing. I am frank in stating that it appears to me that many unnecessary and unreasonable difficulties are encountered by veterans. A system has developed which seems to have gone beyond control. I am constrained to state that it looks with suspicion on practically all claims filed by veterans, particularly in recent years. The whole system permeates with technicalities, rules, and regulations difficult to understand and to interpret.

I have noticed—more by negative than by affirmative action—that a feeling of fear exists in granting service connection to a veteran, and after service connection has been granted, in making a disability rating, upon which the amount of compensation is predicated, that the wound, injury, or disease contracted in service justifies. Interlocked with the above is the endless red tape that one meets, which disheartens and discourages many claimants. I have personally gone over the evidence of many files of veterans which have been disallowed; and if I were sitting in a judicial capacity I would have no hesitancy, based upon the evidence in the file, in making a finding that a service-connection case had been made out in at least 75 per cent of the cases. Under such circumstances and experiences, I can not see my way clear to vote for any bill which will tend to permit the Bureau of Pensions to become absorbed.

The dissatisfaction that exists as a result of the working of such a system that has developed—and I hope that efforts will be made at once to remove the causes for the dissatisfaction—can probably be removed by the passage of a pension bill for veterans of the World War and their dependents when the veterans have been called beyond the Great Divide. The time has arrived for the passage of such legislation. I am absolutely in favor of the passage of such a bill, reserving to disabled service-connected veterans the option of coming within the purview of such a law. In other words, the present status of disabled service-connected veterans should be preserved, granting to them the right of election. Such a course is the only fair one to take.

If a general pension bill was passed, I am satisfied that a substantial percentage of service-connected veterans would elect to accept a pension. In all probabilities, by so doing, they would more nearly receive what they are entitled to. I have said that the time has arrived for the passage of such legislation. It must come some day. Why not now? The determination by Congress of a definite policy with reference to World War veterans must be made some day. The only fair and final determination is by the passage of a pension bill. The veterans of all other wars properly have been given a pension. Are not the veterans of the World War entitled to the same consideration? The granting of pensions to our veterans and to those who are not veterans of any war, but who have served their country in its armed forces for a proscribed period, is a fixed policy of this Nation. If it applies to others, why exempt World War veterans? It might be argued that it is too early, but such an argument is meaningless. If it is proper to pass such a law 20 years from now, it is proper to pass it now. Some might argue economy, but the answer to that is that estimates of cost submitted show that the cost of a pension law will be less at the present time than the cost of the operation of some of the pending bills which appear to have a reasonable chance of becoming law. Sooner or later a law providing a pension for disabled veterans of the World War and for the widows and children of those who receive the "great call" will have to be passed by Congress.

The several States of the Union and their subdivisions (counties, cities, and towns) are rendering excellent service in trying to assist the veteran of the World War, particularly the disabled one and his dependents, who is non-service-connected. That duty rightfully belongs to the Federal Government. My home city, the city of Boston, alone, gladly expends several hundreds of thousands of dollars each year for the relief of veterans and their families, when they are out of work, either because of disability or lack of employment. That is a duty imposed by law upon all cities and towns in Massachusetts. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts contributes a certain part of the money expended by its subdivisions. I assume that somewhat similar laws exist in many, if not all, of the States of the Union. The passage of a pension bill would be the assumption by the Federal Government of its responsibilities and constitute the performance of the pledges and promises made after war was declared. It would greatly remove from the shoulders of the taxpayers of the several States and of their subdivisions, the carrying on of a responsibility which they gladly accepted, but which rightfully resides in the Federal Government. During the past 10 years thousands of World War veterans have taken the journey from which they will never return. Many of them have left behind them widows and children. Under existing laws, affecting veterans of the recent war, they have no rights, unless they can show that death was the direct result of wound, injury, or disease contracted in service. It is practically impossible to secure such an award.

The percentage of allowances of such claims is very small. As the years roll by deaths in the ranks will be more frequent and the ranks of dependents will grow more numerous. Are they not entitled to immediate consideration? The widows and dependents of veterans of all other wars are entitled to pensions. Why not widows and dependents of veterans of the World War? Assuredly, whatever weight might be attached to the argument that it is too early to enact pension legislation or that it will be too expensive can not be advanced against the immediate enactment of a pension law for widows and dependents. There is pending before a committee of this Congress a bill providing for a pension for World War veterans and their widows and dependents. The American people are watching this bill; they are interested in its passage; they are mindful of the promises made and desire to see them fulfilled. The time has arrived for the passage of such legislation, and I earnestly urge the passage by this Congress of a bill that will fulfill and carry out the promises of the war period. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Utah [Mr. COLTON].

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, my experience in this House has taught me that it is an easy thing to get up here and make statements and charges without any foundation for them whatever.

Now, let us see what there is embraced in this bill. It simply provides for the consolidation and coordination of all veteran activities in the interest of efficiency and economy.

It has been stated that the purpose is to absorb all of the bureaus of activity into the Veterans' Bureau. There is no justification for that remark. It is not intended by this bill that the activities of any bureau shall be abolished, neither is it expected that the efficiency of any bureau shall be diminished in the least.

Let us face the situation squarely. We are spending to-day in round numbers $780,000,000 for the veterans' activities of this Government. We spend an amount equal to 32 per cent of all the money raised from Federal income taxes in caring for our veterans.

A great deal has been said by way of criticism about the Veterans' Bureau. I am not speaking for the Veterans' Bureau nor for the Pension Bureau, but I do want to say that it is not fair to make a comparison between the two. I do not agree with much of the criticism. It is not justified. The Pension Bureau is an old service—many years old. It is doing much efficient work. The Veterans' Bureau is a new service—working out one of the greatest economic and humanitarian problems in Government. I say to you that it is not fair to make a comparison between the two. The services are different. The Veterans' Bureau not only carries on the usual veterans' work but it does one of the largest insurance businesses in the world. It does a large banking business. It has more open bookkeeping accounts than any corporation in the United States. We can not appreciate what a tremendous work we have, by acts of Congress, placed on the Veterans' Bureau. We have been making comparison as to the amounts of salaries with no comparison whatever of the work being done. That is unfair.

Now what is the simple, plain purpose of this bill? It is to take these various activities that are spending such a tremendous amount of money and coordinate and consolidate them under one head for the sole purpose of increasing efficiency and economy of all bureaus.

My friend from Michigan [Mr. Cramton] said that it should be under a Cabinet head. Why choose a man that is big enough to be a Cabinet officer, put him in charge of this great activity? This case should not revolve around a personality but a principle. This is a business proposition with a chance to increase efficiency and effect a great economy.

The trouble is that much of this discussion has revolved around personalities. Let us forget personalities. I do not care who is placed at the head. No man here is justified in assuming that any man will hold the position of administrator of veterans' affairs. The President will, no doubt, appoint a man that is big enough to handle the work and carry it on efficiently.

By this consolidation and coordination there will be no unnecessary duplication of work. I think it has been shown in the hearings—and I have listened to most of them and I notice that men who are making these wild statements are those who have not listened—I believe it is a conservative estimate that when it comes to administrative work alone we can save a million and a half dollars.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Utah has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I yield the gentleman three minutes more.

Mr. COLTON. Take, for instance, the hospitalization problem. When it comes to hospitalization you have vacant beds in the soldiers' homes that can be used by the veterans. Sites for hospitals can be furnished by a united activity at great saving. It is estimated conservatively that we can save $9,000,000 in hospitalization. It is also estimated that we would make a great saving in the matter of clerical work. And so I might go on one thing after another to show the amount that may be saved by consolidation.

Ladies and gentlemen, let us proceed with the study of the problem not on the question of personalities but on the question of principle. Who intends to abolish the efficient Pension Bureau? Nobody. An amendment will be offered making it clear that it never was intended to do away with that service. We recognize the efficiency of the Pension Bureau and the soldiers' homes.

We insist also that the Veterans' Bureau, considering the great responsibilities and the tremendous amount of work that has been placed upon it, has been efficient. I have no apology to make for General Hines; I believe he is one of the best administrators in the Government. By nature, training, and experience he is one of the best equipped men in Government service. I am not saying that he is going to be the administrator, however, because I do not know, but I am trying to look at this from principle. It is not a question of abolishing and doing away with efficiency; it is a question of coordinating and consolidating the greatest Government activities probably in existence, and utilizing the greatest spending agency of the Government in the best possible way.

Let me say just one more word as to the Veterans' Bureau. Notwithstanding the large figures given here as being paid for salaries, only 3.72 per cent of the money given to that bureau is spent for administrative purposes. Ninety-six and twenty-eight one hundredths per cent goes directly for the benefit of the veterans. Quoting of dollars does not mean anything, unless you consider work done.

Let us not camouflage the issue, let us make a clear-cut statement. Can we not trust the President of the United States and the able man who will be selected as administrator to preserve all that is best in all bureaus? We believe that the soldiers of the Civil War, who are pensioners, should be protected, and we believe that the pensioners of the Spanish War should be protected, and nobody has any intention of lessening or diminishing the efficiency of those bureaus at all. [Applause.] But it is undisputed that there is a very great duplication of effort, a great duplication of expense, and we are merely asking that under one bureau these activities shall be brought together and their efficiency preserved, and their inefficiency and duplication avoided. We believe we will not only effect a great saving to the Government of the United States but we will insure greater efficiency and greater care for the veterans. [Applause.]

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. MOUSER].

Mr. MOUSER. Mr. Chairman and my colleagues, on Tuesday last I addressed the House on this matter. At that time certain interrogatories were propounded to me, and I want to supplement my remarks of that day with certain figures which I have taken from the testimony of General Hines, the Director of the Veterans' Bureau, which certainly can not be controverted. I have separated the hospitalization expense, the care of the World War veterans, from that incident to paying the compensation claims, and I find that it costs $22,000,000 in salaries to pay compensation claims, including those that are being paid under the emergency officers' retirement act, an estimated expense in 1931 of $196,000,000. This is exclusive of the expense incident to the hospitalization of the boys.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MOUSER. I have not the time. Did any Member of this Congress when he voted to create the Veterans' Bureau anticipate that it would cost practically three times the salaries of the membership of this House, including the United States Senate, plus all of our employees, to pay compensation claims to the veterans? I say that it is a great problem that is before us to-day. There are 14,000 hospital employees to-day taking care of 28,000 patients.

I read now the exact language of General Hines when he appeared before the committee in reference to salaries:

That $45,500,000 covers the salaries and travel of all of the personnel, the purchase of heat, light, rental of buildings and equipment, and miscellaneous expenditures incident to the administration of the bureau. No expense for the operation of hospitals or the medical activities of the regional offices are paid from this appropriation, except the purchase and operation of motor vehicles and the payment of salaries.

All of those before-mentioned expenditures, except salaries, are included in the $2,223,726, leaving the entire balance of $43,176,274 for salaries alone.

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MOUSER. I just have five minutes. There appears in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a statement that I desire to quote from at this time, made by the gentleman from West Virginia, in regard to veterans' activities and compensation claims in the State of West Virginia, appearing in the RECORD on February 17, 1930. From that it appears that 892 veterans in West Virginia for the purpose of obtaining hospital treatment traveled 666,000 miles, or twenty-seven times around the world, at the expense of the Government. Can anyone say that the expenditure of money for the disabled World War veterans should not be carefully scrutinized and considered? We owe a duty to pay this money to the veterans and not to employees to keep the veterans from receiving money intended for them. [Applause.]

The following figures are taken from the statement of Gen. Frank T. Hines, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, before the World War Veterans' Committee on January 16, 1930, hearings on H. R. 7825, and the appropriation bill discussion in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of February 13, 1930:

Total appropriation for Veterans' Bureau for fiscal year 1931	$511,225,000
Military and naval disability compensation, approximately	163,000,000
Compensation to dependents, approximately	33,000,000
Actual estimated disbursement for military and naval compensation, fiscal year 1931	196,648,433
Total appropriation for salaries alone	43,176,274
Telephone, telegraph, travel of employees, etc.	2,323,726
Total administrative expense	45,500,000
Number of patients in hospitals, 28,000.
Bureau employees in hospitals, over 14,000.
Salaries of employees in hospitals	21,119,000
Approximately 10,000 bureau employees outside of hospitals whose salaries are	22,057,274

Over $22,000,000 for salaries of the bureau entirely outside those 14,000 employed in the hospitals. Did any Member of Congress, either of the House or Senate, much less to say the American public, ever intend to maintain a salaried personnel in the Veterans' Bureau which amounts to practically three times the combined salaries of all the Members of Congress and the United States Senate together with the entire allowance for office help of both bodies of our National Congress? And this amount is entirely outside of salaries paid to any hospital employees; and we are actually paying only $196,000,000 to the disabled veterans and their dependents. The balance of this total appropriation of $511,225,000 is spent for hospitals, insurance, adjusted compensation, and so forth. The proportion of this balance used for administrative expense is tremendous. For example:

In the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of February 17, in one State in one year, 892 veterans to obtain hospital treatment traveled about 666,000 miles, or twenty-seven times around the world at Government expense.

General HINES. That $45,500,000 covers the salaries and travel of all the personnel, the purchase of heat, light, rental of buildings and equipment, and miscellaneous expenditures incident to the administration of the bureau. No expense for the operation of hospitals or the medical activities of the regional offices are paid from this appropriation, except the purchase and operation of motor vehicles and the payment of salaries.

All of the above-mentioned expenditures, except salaries, are included in the $2,323,726, leaving the entire balance of $43,176,274 for salaries alone. Many have been under the impression that this figure of $45,500,000 covered at least a part of the operation cost of the hospitals in addition to salaries. It is my desire to make it clear that it does not cover any of the operating cost, except the salaries, of the 14,000 men who are caring for the 28,000 patients.

Contrast this kind of administrative expense with that of the Pension Bureau, which paid out $214,000,000 to 471,422 pensioners and the entire cost of both salaries and administration is $1,219,400.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I shall yield myself one minute. I can not understand why gentlemen get up on this floor and make the character of statements they do with reference to the overhead in the Veterans' Bureau. I call the attention of the House to two tables which I inserted in the RECORD yesterday, appearing on page 6738, which show the break-up of the dollar both in the national homes and in the veterans' hospitals. An examination of these tables and the table appearing at page 214 of the hearings will show that out of every dollar expended in the Veterans' Bureau less than 4 cents is spent for administrative expenses. Any statement made to the contrary is based upon figures which include matters which clearly can not be properly classed as overhead.

Mr. MOUSER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Sorry; but I have only one minute. I am stating the facts, and the gentleman can get them from the record.

Mr. MOUSER. I was quoting from General Hines's testimony.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. General Hines's testimony shows that the amount is 3.72 cents of each dollar expended by the bureau. Take a look at page 183 of the hearing if you want to know what the general said.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota has used one minute.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. SWING].

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. SWING].

Mr. SWING. Mr. Chairman, I rise to discuss a subject that is closely related to this bill, perhaps directly so, and that has to do with the regulations of the Veterans' Bureau for the care of veterans in hospitals and who have been discharged from hospitals against medical advice to go to their own homes and who desire what is known as out-patient treatment. The Veterans' Bureau is equipped to carry on an extensive work in out-patient medical service. Of course, such service is obviously much cheaper to the Federal Government than hospitalization, where the men must be fed, housed, and furnished nurses and attendants.

Out-patient service is where a man stays at home and is nursed by his wife or mother, and simply has some contract doctor to look after him and see that he gets proper medicine.

Now, among its disciplinary regulations the Veterans' Bureau has formulated this proposal: A man who insists on going home against medical advice is listed for discipline, and is thereafter denied medical service or attention until he can in some way get himself reinstated or develops a case of emergency. They have in Regulations and Procedure, United States Veterans' Bureau, Medical, 1929, a paragraph—6588—and I will put in the RECORD subdivisions (c), (d), and (e) of that paragraph, which are as follows:

(c) When a beneficiary who has been admitted to a hospital upon authority of this bureau is discharged therefrom "against medical advice" and upon return to his home has become ill and requests medical treatment at home and it is determined that his physical condition is such that he can return to a hospital, medical care and treatment will not be furnished by the bureau to such beneficiary in his home.

(d) Where the same conditions obtain as in (c) except that the beneficiary's condition is not considered such as to permit his removal to a hospital, the bureau will nevertheless not assume the care and treatment of such claimant in his home.

(e) Where the conditions discussed in (c) and (d) obtain except that the discharge from hospital has been for "absence without official leave" or for "disciplinary reasons," regional office will be similarly governed as in (c) and (d); that is, care and treatment at home will not be authorized at the bureau's expense.

I charge that these regulations constitute official blacklisting of disabled veterans, to take care of whom the bureau was especially created. As you see, under subdivision (c) they provide that if a man leaves a hospital against medical advice and goes home and then subsequently needs medical treatment but is in condition to go back to the hospital they refuse to give him out-patient service. Thus disciplinary treatment is substituted for medical treatment. But now notice regulation (d), where the veteran's condition will not permit his removal to a hospital. Although the ex-service man's condition is so serious that to attempt to remove him to a hospital would endanger his very life, still the Veterans' Bureau in Washington admonishes its regional offices that they must not assume the care or treatment of the patient in his home.

Now let me give you a concrete example of how this rule works.

I went to the office of General Hines on the morning of March 28 and called his attention to a telegram sent to me by the past State president of the American Legion auxiliary of California, citing me to the case of J. H. Wilson, veteran, who was dying at Banning, Calif., without medical care or attention. I pleaded with him to do something to care for this man, who had incurred these very disabilities in the defense of his country and who was then dying from the effects of them. He assured me he would. I sent a telegram that the boy would be taken care of. In due time I got a letter from the commander of the American Legion thanking me for my efforts in behalf of this boy, but saying that Wilson had suffered terribly and died on March 30 without anything whatever being done for him by the Veterans' Bureau. This boy was one of 25 veterans blacklisted by the Veterans' Bureau in this one community. No medical aid will be given them merely because sometime they broke some hospital regulation. This House and the American people know that the war is over and that these disabled boys are not in the Army now. The medical doctors who had no military functions to perform during the war are now in time of peace very militaristic and are insisting on iron discipline to the extent that they will leave a man to die of want and neglect in order to teach him the importance of obeying all of their hospital regulations.

That is not what Congress intended for the Veterans' Bureau to do or what the American people wanted done. I say, unless the Veterans' Bureau is able to get back to its mission of mercy, of tenderly caring for the sick intrusted by the American people to their custody, God forbid that any more veterans should be put within their control. [Applause.]

Blacklisting was prohibited in this country by law as an uncivilized weapon of industrial warfare; yet in an agency set up for humane purposes we find that blacklisting is resorted to for disciplinary reasons, and men are allowed to die in neglect by an agency spending millions of dollars annually in the name of humanity.

I hope that if this bill is adopted there will be attached to it some amendment prohibiting the blacklisting of sick and disabled veterans of the war by the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. OLIVER of Alabama. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SWING. Yes.

Mr. OLIVER of Alabama. The gentleman has mentioned a very distressing case that naturally excites our sympathy. I understand the gentleman to say that General Hines was considerate and promised prompt treatment?

Mr. SWING. Yes, he did; but it took so long to unwind the bureau's red-tape that nothing was ever done. I called the case to General Hines's attention on March 28, and the man was allowed to die on March 30 without a Veterans' Bureau employee ever going to see him.

Mr. OLIVER of Alabama. Does the gentleman know the name of the doctor who refused hospital treatment?

Mr. SWING. The Veterans' Bureau knows. Primarily it is their regulations. There are supposed to be about 25 of these blacklisted cases in one community of my district, and I am told there are 169 in southern California.

Mr. YON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield there? You have mentioned the work of the Veterans' Bureau. As between the work of the Veterans' Bureau and that of the Pension Bureau, do you not find it simpler and easier to do business with the Pension Bureau than with the Veterans' Bureau?

Mr. SWING. Yes; but comparisons are somewhat unfair sometimes. It is my observation, however, that there is more lost motion in the Veterans' Bureau than in any other agency of the Government.

But in fairness it ought to be said that part of that is due to the nature of their problems; part of it is due to the law. Our pension law is an easier law to apply than one of disabilities which must be connected by evidence with the service. I cast no reflections upon anybody in the Veterans' Bureau. General Hines is an honest, genial man, with good intentions, but he has a great, unwieldy organization. He can not know what is going on in all parts of that bureau. But he now knows of these regulations, and I sincerely hope that this barbaric relic of antiquity can be abolished by the Veterans' Bureau and the humane work that they are expected to do will be carried on without regard to red tape and military discipline.

Mr. GREEN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SWING. I yield.

Mr. GREEN. I would suggest to the gentleman from California [Mr. SWING] that the same military discipline that has been applied in the case just mentioned by the gentleman could be applied by the director to his minor officials. Why does he not kick them out if he is without blame himself? It is his duty to systematize it and put it on a proper administrative, workable basis.

Mr. SWING. I yield to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. SUMMERS].

Mr. SUMMERS of Washington. If the head of one bureau is not able to give more direct attention, as in the case cited, how does the gentleman from California think that by putting three of them together the administrator would be able to accomplish that?

Mr. SWING. I favor bringing together these three activities in the interest of economy; but, to use an illustration, I favor putting the three eggs in one basket, but I do not favor scrambling the eggs. [Applause.]

I desire to extend my remarks by including the telegram from Mrs. Ann Chapline, calling my attention to the Wilson case on March 28; the letter of Frank McGregor, announcing the death of Wilson on March 30, without having received any attention from the Veterans' Bureau; the letter of Otto C. Meeks, welfare officer of the American Legion at Banning, Calif., calling attention to the blacklisting practices of the bureau; and a letter of Frank McGregor to the same purport.

ORANGE, CALIF., March 28, 1930.

PHIL SWING,

House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

J. H. Wilson (C-1281615), disabled World War veteran, Banning, Calif., dying without proper medical attention owing ruling medical procedure section 6588 from central office, Washington. Detailed explanation sent you by Frank McGregor recently. Many cases urgent here. Ruling unjust. Immediate attention appreciated.

(Mrs.) ANN CHAPLINE,

Past State President American Legion Auxiliary.

BANNING, CALIF., April 3, 1930.

Hon. PHIL D. SWING,

Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR COMRADE: Thanks kindly for your letter of March 29. It was very good of you indeed to get up out of your sick bed, and I can assure you that your work is very much appreciated. We sincerely hope by this time that you are fully recovered. The boys need you badly.

James H. Wilson (C-1281615), "service connected," died the day after you wrote to me. He died March 30. His wife and relatives are very much hurt. He put off calling the doctor in until it was too late; he was so far gone the doctor could only help relieve the pain. He suffered terribly. His wife stated they just could not afford it, and that they expected every day that the Veterans' Bureau would allow them a doctor. The Los Angeles office of the Veterans' Bureau was notified and contacted, and told that this man was dying and needed medical help. Their reply was, as you know, in the negative. His case somehow was given considerable publicity and the reaction in southern California is beginning to become apparent as unfavorable toward the Veterans' Bureau, I must say. If your letter had of come a week sooner may be it might of been able to save Wilson.

On a separate sheet I will give you list of veterans blacklisted here.

Very sincerely yours,

FRANK MCGREGOR.

BANNING POST, AMERICAN LEGION,

Banning, Calif., March 3, 1930.

NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN LEGION,

Indianapolis, Ind.

COMRADES: The following was passed as a resolution of Banning Post on February 20:

"An emergency has arisen in the affairs of some of our disabled comrades, who, having left Government hospitals against medical advice, are now living in such places as Banning, near the desert and under conditions which they and their families feel are materially aiding them in their recovery or the alleviation of their disability.

"Most of them are tubercular and seem to be getting along at least as well as they would elsewhere.

"The Veterans' Bureau regional office at Los Angeles has withdrawn medical attendance and medicines, along with special treatment which some cases may require. The 25 cases in the pass country centering at Banning are termed 'A. W. O. L.'s' by the bureau.

"Since there is not room in Government hospitals for thousands who have been recommended for hospitalization, and since our best advice is that it is cheaper for the Government to maintain such veterans, with medical attendance and medicines, in their separate homes rather than in hospitals, we ask the aid of the entire American Legion to return to these our sick comrades all the help a wealthy and grateful Nation can render, no matter where they may be."

EARL G. DOLE, Commander.

OTTO C. MEEKS, Welfare Officer.

BANNING, CALIF., March 2, 1930.

Hon. PHIL D. SWING,

Washington, D. C.

DEAR COMRADE: We need your kind help again. I will forego formalities this time, be brief, and to the point.

In August, 1929, the Veterans' Bureau central office at Washington issued a new book of rules and regulations, which was sent to all regional offices at that time, and they were duly put into effect.

Since then Doctor Schultz has been appointed chief medical officer at the Los Angeles office, taking the place of Doctor Donnelly, who was transferred to the central office at Washington. Doctor Schultz apparently took it upon himself to make his own interpretation of these rules and asked the central office for authorization to put his interpretation into effect, which they did reluctantly, for the time being, at least. The effect of these new rules is to deprive any and all claimants of any medical home treatment or drugs whatsoever, if at any time, no matter if it was seven or eight years ago they left the hospital after being hospitalized, against medical advice or A. W. O. L. This ruling affects 8 disabled veterans in Banning and 169 in this southern district. Some of these men and women in Banning left the hospital seven years ago and have been on home treatment ever since. Now they are being deprived of everything except their compensation. You know that is absolutely unfair and without precedent to take advantage of bedridden T. B. patients like that. Hospitalized claimants who become A. W. O. L. or leave hospital against medical advice have always been penalized, which is as it should be, but this new ruling is beyond reason. Don Chaplin, the Los Angeles County Legion service officer, is trying to do what he can to help the boys down there.

Very sincerely,

FRANK MCGREGOR.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. RANKIN].

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks in the RECORD, and include a list of emergency officers, now retired with pay and employed in the Veterans' Bureau, showing their salaries and retirement pay; also a list of emergency officers, retired with pay, who are not employed in the Veterans' Bureau, showing their retirement pay.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the RECORD in the manner indicated. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to this bill, and I want to say to the gentlemen of the House who are going off on the idea that the World War veterans are in favor of it that as far as we know the World War veterans are very much divided on this proposition. They have the Veterans' Bureau now. They are not asking to come under the Pension Bureau, and they have no right, even if they had the power, to dictate to those now under the Pension Bureau what shall be done with them. And as far as I know, the soldiers now under the Pension Bureau are not asking to be put under the Veterans' Bureau.

There are only two reasons for the passage of this bill. One would be in the interest of efficiency, and the other would be in the interest of economy. Unless it promotes efficiency or economy it is useless for Congress to proceed with its passage.

Let us see about its efficiency. There is no question but that the Veterans' Bureau will ultimately swallow up the Pension Bureau and the soldiers homes. If any of the gentlemen doubt that, they should have heard the clamor for this consolidation in the years that have passed. But cutting down expense is not attempted. A superbureau under a new director is created. They are all put under one bureau with the same functions to perform. I care not who the titular director is, the Secretary of the Treasury will be the superdirector. It will increase the efficiency of neither the Veterans' Bureau nor the Pension Bureau.

Now, let us see about the expense. Will it promote economy? It would promote economy if the compensation of the veterans were fixed, and the Veterans' Bureau were prohibited from meddling with it. If it were turned over to the Pension Bureau to mail out the checks, several million dollars would be saved.

That, however, is not being done. It is simply proposed to put them all under one superbureau, create another office paying $12,000 a year, and make one more loop in the barbed-wire mesh of red tape with which the veterans with disabilities are now struggling. I am speaking now with reference to veterans of the World War—men from the rank and file.

With reference to expenses, the salaries in the Pension Bureau are $1,805,226.63 a year. What are the salaries in the Veterans' Bureau? Let us see how much money the Pension Bureau distributes to the men each year. I am speaking of the disabled soldiers. Two hundred and twenty-eight million nine hundred and sixty-five thousand six hundred and seventy-two dollars and forty-nine cents is distributed by the Pension Bureau.

What are the salaries in the Veterans' Bureau? I am not quoting figures offhand, but I have taken these figures from the cross-examination of General Hines. The salaries in the Veterans' Bureau amount to $40,693,345.35. All the salaries of all the Congressmen, all the Senators, all of their clerks and secretaries together amounts to less than $10,000,000 a year—less than one-fourth the salaries of the Veterans' Bureau.

Why create more of it? If the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. WILLIAMSON] will "screw his courage to the sticking place," some of this red tape might be cut out. Some of these overhead expenses might be eliminated. But this bill will not do it.

Let us see how much money the Veterans' Bureau distributes to the veterans. This talk about the expense of the Veterans' Bureau being unloaded on the back of the veterans should stop. I expect to answer every man who charges the veteran with absorbing these great expenditures. I will show you exactly what has been expended. In order that I may not be accused of misquoting, I will turn to the testimony of General Hines. He says, "$196,000,000 is the estimate for the year 1931." This is taken from the hearing on the Rankin bill, which should have become a law three months ago. The Veterans' Bureau distributed $196,000,000 to the veterans; the Pension Bureau distributed $228,000,000 to their veterans. The salaries in the Veterans' Bureau are more than $40,000,000. The salaries in the Pension Bureau are $1,800,000.

Mr. SCHAFFER of Wisconsin. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. I know what the gentleman is going to ask and I will answer it before he states it.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. I yield.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. The gentleman stated—

Mr. RANKIN. No. I yielded for a question only. I decline to yield for a statement.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman tell the House what percentage of the money expended by the Veterans' Bureau is used for overhead?

Mr. RANKIN. No. That is another link in the red tape.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. It is 3.72.

Mr. RANKIN. Oh, the gentleman talks about all the money expended by the Veterans' Bureau. It is being spent for every kind of activity that the Veterans' Bureau engages in. But only $196,000,000 is paid to the veterans, and the salaries in the Veterans' Bureau amount to more than $40,000,000.

I know you are going to say some of these are salaries in the hospitals. I will tell you how much the salaries in the hospitals of the Veterans' Bureau are. They are $19,000,000. They are $21,000,000 in the Veterans' Bureau exclusive of hospitals—more than ten times as much as the salaries in the Pension Bureau without hospitals and more than twice as much as all the salaries of both the House and the Senate including all their clerks and all their secretaries.

There are no Federal soldiers in my district. You are paying pensions for what our soldiers did to your soldiers during the Civil War. [Laughter.] I have none of them to amount to anything, but there are Spanish-American War veterans in my district; they are opposed to this bill, and I do not blame them.

Now, what will you have? Here is a man who has a disability amounting to 30 per cent, and here is what you will pay him.

If he is a veteran of the Civil War, owing to his extreme age, he will now be getting $72 a month, whether he was a buck private or a major general. If he is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, he will be drawing $50 a month, whether a private or a general. If he is a veteran of the World War with a 30 per cent disability he will be drawing $30 a month. If he happens to be a World War veteran with a 30 per cent disability, and was a private soldier in that conflict, he will be drawing $30 a month, but if he happened to be a major general he will be drawing about $450 a month, and if he was a colonel he would be drawing $262.50 a month under the so-called emergency officers' retirement act passed by Congress several years ago, which creates these discriminations between officers and enlisted men.

Before we turn all of these veterans' affairs over to one bureau we ought first to eliminate some of these discriminations. Under the permission granted me to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I here insert a list of those emergency officers now retired with pay who are employed in the Veterans' Bureau, showing the salaries they receive, together with the retirement pay which they are allowed.

The list is attached:

These are the men who are passing upon the applications of the enlisted men who are now disabled, many of whom are being denied compensation when they are just as much entitled to it, and in greater need thereof than these high-salaried officials, who are drawing these enormous pensions under the head of "retirement pay."

The Veterans' Bureau can refuse, reduce, or even cancel the compensation of an enlisted man; but one of those retired emergency officers drawing these compensations, even though he be drawing a salary of six or eight thousand dollars a year, as some of them are, is assured that only Congress can reduce his retirement pay.

Before we turn all of these activities over to the Veterans' Bureau we had better take some steps to equalize the compensation which veterans are now receiving. They told us when the emergency officers' retirement act was passed that there would be only about eighteen hundred men to come under it. Under the permission just granted me I here insert a list of those who have been retired with pay who are not employed in the Veterans' Bureau, giving the compensation or retirement pay each one is receiving.

In addition to these, thousands more have applied, and the list is growing every day. While we have been fighting to extend the presumptive period for tuberculosis and other chronic constitutional diseases to January 1, 1930, in order to take care of those uncompensated disabled veterans from the rank and file, who now need and deserve their country's assistance, this list has been growing, increasing the number of discriminations against the enlisted men.

The list just referred to follows:

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. McCLINTIC].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. Mr. Chairman, I have always favored a policy of coordination and consolidation with respect to administering the affairs of the various departments of the Government. As I view this legislation, it is in the interest of economy. I have carefully listened to those who have preceded me, and up to the present time no one has furnished any proof or made the statement that the present head of the Veterans' Bureau or the Pension Bureau will be selected to administer the affairs of this new department should the same be created by this bill. Therefore, I think when some one presumes or makes the statement that any one particular person will be selected to carry out the provisions of this bill, he speaks without authority.

What does this bill do? It simply coordinates, consolidates, and places the different activities of the Veterans' and Pension Bureaus under one head, and leaves the selection of the person to be placed in charge to the President of the United States and the Senate.

As I view it, the gentleman from Mississippi, who has just preceded me, and the gentleman from Ohio, who criticized the activities of the Veterans' Bureau, gave splendid reasons why this bill should become a law. There is one thing sure, if the affairs of the Veterans' Bureau are not now being properly administered, and if more money is being expended than should be, then there is ample reason for the passage of legislation of this kind, as the same will bring about more business efficiency if managed in the proper way.

I want to call attention to one situation that reflects, as I view it, upon the management of the Veterans' Bureau, and this is a very good reason for supporting this bill, as the first section of the measure specifically provides for the consolidation and coordination of hospitals, which, in my opinion, at the present time are not being managed or looked after in a proper way by this department of the Veterans' Bureau. As I view it, the hospital department and those in charge of the same have completely fallen down when it comes to managing the same in an efficient manner. As proof of this, recently two representatives from the Veterans' Bureau came before the Naval Committee and gave testimony in support of a policy which would cause the Navy to construct hospitals at different places in the United States sufficiently large to take care of approximately three veteran patients to one Navy patient, using the argument that the Navy could hospitalize patients cheaper than the Veterans' Bureau. What does this mean? The only conclusion I can draw is that those in charge of the hospital activities of the Veterans' Bureau are unable to manage them in an efficient manner, or that there is a tendency on the part of certain officials to favor a policy that will bring about excessive expenditures without any thought of the taxpayers.

I was amazed when admissions were made by representatives of the Veterans' Bureau that the naval hospitals were better equipped, better administered, and were operated cheaper than those under the jurisdiction of the Veterans' Bureau. Such admissions are bound to cast an unsavory reflection upon the head of the department, and if I was in charge of this Bureau, I would either have proper efficiency, or there would be an entire change of personnel.

To be perfectly frank, I put no dependency in the statement that patients from the Veterans' Bureau can be hospitalized in naval hospitals cheaper than in their own institutions, for the reason everyone knows that figures can be manipulated to prove or disprove any kind of a case; also, it is a fact that the salaries of the officers in the naval hospitals have to be paid whether there is one patient or a thousand. Therefore when all of the items that should be charged to overhead are taken into consideration, if veteran patients can be taken care of more cheaply in naval hospitals, then there is something radically wrong in the hospital division of the Veterans' Bureau. I want to call attention to some information that I hope every Member of Congress will read. On page 906 of a Naval Committee hearing on a bill to provide a hospital at Washington, D. C., the information was brought out that hospitals or additions would be asked for at Chelsea, Mass.; Newport, R. I.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Quantico, Va.; Great Lakes, Ill.; Puget Sound, Wash.; Mare Island, Calif.; and San Diego, Calif. According to the amount asked for in the bills relating to Washington and Philadelphia, it will cost approximately $11,000,000 to construct these hospitals. Up to the present time the Navy has 7,284 beds in naval hospitals. The peak load for 1929, including 2,917 veteran patients, was 5,892. The $15,000,000 recently appropriated to construct additional hospitals for veteran patients will provide additional facilities for 3,900 patients. Therefore should the 2,917 veteran patients now being taken care of by the Navy be withdrawn, then there would be left 3,309 vacant beds in naval hospitals without patients to be taken care of. Bills are now pending to provide new hospitals at Washington and Philadelphia, which will cost approximately $5,500,000. If the same ratio is followed when the naval-hospital program is completed, there will be available approximately 10,000 vacant beds in naval hospitals, more than is necessary to take care of patients in the Navy and the Veterans' Bureau. Therefore it seems so utterly foolish to me that officials from the Veterans' Bureau would appear before a committee and give information for the purpose of causing abnormal expenditures to be made in the way of useless appropriations.

The proposed schedule of hospital buildings will cost more, in my opinion, to construct than private hospitals. Not long ago I requested the Veterans' Bureau to furnish me a schedule of the original cost of such hospitals as are now under the jurisdiction of this department, and notwithstanding I requested facts containing the naked cost of the buildings, a Mr. Louis H. Tripp, chief of the construction division, furnished information which was not accurate, for the reason it included many additions that had been made after the original buildings were constructed. I called him on the telephone and requested that I be given such information as I had asked for. Instead of complying with my suggestion the matter was passed over, and up to the present time I have had nothing from this department, except that I have been advised by one individual that I was criticized by persons in this department because I sought to bring out certain information when opposing the proposed useless expenditures for hospital purposes. Some one in that department has seen fit to make such a statement that was not complimentary in the presence of one of my friends. I am not concerned with their personal attitude toward me. However, I am making mention of this situation to call attention to the inefficiency of this department and its heads, who deliberately refuse to furnish Members of Congress information requested relative to public questions. Mr. Tripp does not have to furnish me the data requested. As I view his conduct, he is the type of public official that should not be entrusted with matters of this kind, and there is no wonder that they are willing to admit that some other department of the Government is better able to take care of veteran patients than their own bureau. I only hope it will be my privilege to remain in Congress long enough to see that his personal attitude in this matter receives proper consideration.

General Hines may not be acquainted with the admissions that have been made by those in charge of certain activities with respect to the management of veteran hospitals. If he favors the policy of farming out veteran patients to military hospitals, where patients will be subject to the same kind of regulations that they were in the Army, then the public can expect to read accounts as they have in the past of patients assaulting and in some instances killing certain individuals whose services they were displeased with.

Mr. CRISP. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. Yes.

Mr. CRISP. Was the fact brought out that the Navy could operate hospitals cheaper than the Veterans' Bureau, because the Navy might use some enlisted men as attendants, and so forth, in the hospitals?

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. It was not.

Now, as I view this question, our Pension Bureau is being properly carried on in a very efficient manner. I have no complaint to make about this bureau, but I can not understand why any person would say that the consolidation of these bureaus under one head would in any way destroy the efficiency that exists at the present time. If such a condition should arise, then the fault would be with the new head.

I am in favor of a policy which will bring about not only economy but efficiency, and then when this consolidation is brought about, if the head of the department does not put into effect the proper kind of rules and regulations he alone must stand the blame.

Mr. CONNERY. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. Yes.

Mr. CONNERY. Has not the gentleman found from observation that if we had a flat rate in the Veterans' Bureau, the same as for Spanish-American War veterans, it would be just as easy to administer the law as it is in the Pension Bureau now?

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. I take it the Veterans' Bureau has had many more difficult problems because of the entirely different situation in connection with their patients. The Pension Bureau has been established for many years. There are practically no new laws that relate to the methods that are necessary to be followed in order to pay those who are entitled to receive a pension; but in the Veterans' Bureau there are many kinds of activities—activities that relate to insurance, hospitalization, compensation, and many others that it is not necessary to mention at this time.

I can not understand why any person would ever assume the position that we could not coordinate and consolidate these various bureaus in a way that would bring the kind of efficiency we are entitled to have. For this reason I say to you that the argument that has been presented against this bill is one reason I am supporting the measure, having in mind that somebody big enough to cause this one bureau to function in a proper way will be selected to administer its affairs.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Oklahoma has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman three minutes more.

Mr. CLARK of Maryland. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. CLARK of Maryland. While the gentleman is speaking on the question of economy and efficiency, will he allow me at this time to read into the RECORD four lines from the President's address of December 3, 1929, on that subject?

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. I will be pleased to.

Mr. CLARK of Maryland. The President said:

I am convinced that we will gain in efficiency, economy, and more uniform administration and better definition of national policies if the Pension Bureau, the National Home for Volunteer Soldiers, and the Veterans' Bureau are brought together under a single agency.

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. I want to say in conclusion if it is good policy to scatter our different forms of administration with relation to the bureaus for the veterans, it would be good policy to scatter the various functions of government and put them all under separate heads. If we consolidate them and put them all under one head, then we know that if there is anything wrong with the administration of the various departments under that head the blame falls on one man; and if he is not big enough, then the powers that control this Government have the right to make the necessary change.

Therefore I say to you that I am speaking from the standpoint of policy, a national policy, a policy that is in line with every successful business concern in the United States, and that is to consolidate, coordinate, and put all of the different instrumentalities that are allied with each other under one head, and then there can be no strife or discord. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Oklahoma has expired; all time has expired, and the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That (a) the President is authorized, by Executive order, to consolidate and coordinate any hospitals and executive and administrative bureaus, agencies, or offices, especially created for or concerned in the administration of the laws relating to the relief and other benefits provided by law for former members of the Military and Naval Establishments of the United States, including the Bureau of Pensions, the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, and the United States Veterans' Bureau, into an establishment to be known as the Administration of Veterans' Affairs, and to transfer the duties, powers, and functions now vested by law in the hospitals, bureaus, agencies, or offices so consolidated and coordinated, including the personnel thereof, and the whole or any part of the records and public property belonging thereto to the Administration of Veterans' Affairs.

(b) Under the direction of the President the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs shall have the power, by order or regulation, to consolidate, eliminate, or redistribute the functions of the bureaus, agencies, officers, or activities in the Administration of Veterans' Affairs and to create new ones therein, and, by rules and regulations not inconsistent with law, shall fix the functions thereof and the duties and powers of their respective executive heads.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 1, line 3, before the word "That," insert the letter "(a)," and after the word "That" strike out the letter "(a)."

Mr. CONNERY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the committee amendment.

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I rise at this time because I did not have an opportunity to talk during general debate merely to say after a study of this question, which I have had the opportunity to make in the Veterans' Committee during the past seven years, and listening to the discussions on the floor of the House, it is my intention to vote against this bill. I do not vote against it because I am against consolidation or against joining all these veterans' activities together but because until the Johnson bill is reported on the floor of this House I do not believe in consolidation.

The Johnson bill, which we have been trying to get up on the floor of this House and get some action on, provides that all men with diseases which have a 10 per cent or more disability up to January 1, 1925, will be automatically connected with the service. If this bill had been passed, thereby taking care of all disabled service men with a 10 per cent or more disability, I would be pleased to vote for the consolidation, because I would know that the service men were not going to be discriminated against and that there is no danger of harm coming to them under such a consolidation; but as it stands now, until the Johnson bill comes before this House taking care of the disabled service men with a 10 per cent or more disability, it is my intention to vote against this bill. [Applause.]

Mr. LUCE. As a member of the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation since it was created, and for much of that time a member of the subcommittee on hospitalization, I have been closely in touch with this proposal, and, together with a majority of the committee, have shared in the attempts of that committee hitherto to accomplish the purpose this bill contemplates. For that reason I believe this is a good bill and ought to become law. [Applause.]

I wish to lay special emphasis on its importance in its effect on hospital treatment. My own conclusions in the matter were based upon learning that there are 10 soldiers' homes, mostly with large acreage upon which more hospital facilities can be placed, with economy to the Government in the matter of the initial cost of the land and then continuously in the matter of the cost of maintenance through the division of overhead charges.

Beyond this there is great desirability that we shall now embark on specialization of treatment of the disabled veterans. At the present time there are 30,000 in the hospitals. We have specialized with the tuberculous and the neuropsychiatric, popularly known as the insane, but we have made no attempt at further specialization.

Last year, for example, there were in the hospitals in the course of the year 1,387 men suffering from skin diseases. I speak without any medical knowledge, but on the basis of common understanding that skin diseases may best be treated where there are springs having certain medicinal properties.

Only a few days ago we inserted in the hospital construction bill an item providing for a million dollar hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., largely for the reason that it is desirable to treat these and some other classes of diseases in the vicinity of these springs.

On the 1st of January of this year there were 118 victims of diabetes in hospitals and at the same time 146 victims of cancer. In my judgment, the time has come to make provision for all groups of cases large enough to warrant special treatment.

My own State of Massachusetts has led the way in the establishment of a cancer hospital, and it is my hope that other States will profit by the example set and the good results we have accomplished.

It is also believed that this measure would be of value both to the veterans and to the Public Treasury by reason of the fact that in the neuropsychiatric hospitals there are many veterans who need only domiciliary treatment. By that I mean only such care and oversight as is found in the soldiers' homes. In the hospitals we must pay the full cost of day and night nurses and physicians, must furnish the costliest food for all alike, must meet all the other needs of the seriously ill. The average cost of maintenance in the hospitals, overhead and everything else included, is about $4 a day. If there could be taken out of the hospitals the considerable number of men needing only domiciliary treatment, they would be comfortably supported in soldiers' homes, all costs included, for $1.42 a day. That would be an important saving for the Government. At the same time every hospital bed thus vacated would be available for a veteran seriously ill. Specialization and classification will harm no one, and will improve conditions in the whole medical service given to the veterans. [Applause.]

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to the amendment. Both of the preceding speakers have come out in favor of this legislation because it proposes to consolidate—

Mr. CONNERY. Will the gentleman yield? I did not favor the bill.

Mr. KNUTSON. I beg the gentleman's pardon. I meant the gentleman from Massachusetts, Mr. LUCE, and the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. MCCLINTIC].

Mr. CONNERY. I am with the gentleman, and I am against this bill.

Mr. KNUTSON. The two speakers I have indicated favored this legislation because it is going to consolidate the Veterans' Bureau and the Pension Bureau. That, ladies and gentlemen of the House, is the very reason why I am opposed to the legislation.

Mr. LUCE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KNUTSON. I have only five minutes.

Mr. LUCE. I merely wanted to say that I made no reference to the Pension Bureau.

Mr. KNUTSON. The gentleman spoke about consolidation and, of course, it is not necessary to furnish blue prints when addressing this House. In the first place, the only bureau that will be benefited by the consolidation will be the Veterans' Bureau. Unfortunately, the Pension Bureau has only 600 clerks. Consequently, you could not infuse enough new blood into the Veterans' Bureau to materially improve conditions down in the Veterans' Bureau, where you have 24,000 clerks and doctors and God knows what else. Six hundred thrown into that amount would not have as much effect as throwing a pebble in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.

Make no mistake, ladies and gentlemen. If this legislation is passed, you are merely spreading the evils of the Veterans'

Bureau over to the Pension Bureau. I have been watching this thing for 14 years. As I stated to the House the other day, I spoke and voted against the creation of the original War Risk Insurance Bureau because I did not think it would do what its proponents claimed it would, and I believe that subsequent events have justified the course that I took back in 1917.

Mr. MCCLINTIC of Oklahoma. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KNUTSON. I can not yield now. The principle of coordination and consolidation is a fine thing, but I fail to see where you are going to accomplish any improvement in the move that you propose here. Amendments will be offered to this legislation in several places. If paragraph (b) of section 1 is stricken out, I may vote for the bill; otherwise not. Those of us who are against this legislation are not opposed to coordination, but we are opposed to throwing the Pension Bureau in with the Veterans' Bureau and making it a memory. All of you within the sound of my voice have had relations with both of them. Do you want to extend the principles of the Veterans' Bureau to the Pension Bureau? I make the prophecy that that will happen if this legislation is adopted. [Applause.]

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last two words.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi is recognized.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate upon this amendment close in 10 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Chairman, I listened with a great deal of interest to the remarks of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LUCE]. He pointed out the real cause, the real motive behind the passage of this legislation, and that is to take over the soldiers' homes. That is what is behind this movement.

As you know, my people were in the Confederate Army, I am glad to say. If your folks had been there, they would have been in the Confederate Army; and if mine had been in your States, they would have been in the Federal Army. We boys from the South have refused to interfere with these old Federal soldiers' homes. These men are old, they are childish, and they do not want these changes made. Statistics show that they will all be dead in nine years, and we have taken the attitude that if you are going to take over the soldiers' homes, we are going to let you, the sons and the grandsons of the Federal soldiers, do it. We opposed it for some time and then withdrew our objection, but if you desire it we have no serious objection to your consolidating the soldiers' homes with the Veterans' Bureau or turning them over to the Veterans' Bureau, but why create a superbureau in doing it? Why do you need any other director? You have more directors now than you know what to do with.

Why murder the Pension Bureau? That is what I want to know. You know it is one of the oldest bureaus in existence in this Government. Those of us who are descendants of Revolutionary War soldiers can invariably trace back to where our people were under the supervision of the Pension Bureau.

Did you know that the soldiers of the War of 1812 were under the supervision of that bureau and that all of the soldiers of all of the Indian wars, and of the Mexican War were under the supervision of that bureau, which is so economically administered to-day? And in addition to that, the soldiers of the Civil War and the soldiers of the Spanish-American War are under the supervision of this ancient bureau, which they now propose to indirectly destroy. That is what this bill will do, if it is agreed to. Therefore, I do not think any amendment can make me vote for it.

I think it is one of the most useless pieces of legislation I have ever seen offered. I am opposed to it from a great many different points of view. You can render a great service by striking the Pension Bureau out of the bill and consolidating only the soldiers' homes with the Pension Bureau, if you agree with the views of the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LUCE], whose views I am not criticizing on this point, that the soldiers' homes and the Veterans' Bureau ought to be consolidated in order, as he says, that we might use those institutions for veterans' hospitals in the years to come. I repeat, however, that in doing so it is quite unnecessary to turn aside and murder the Pension Bureau, which has rendered such great service in the past and which ought to go on down to render the same economical service in the future if the time should come, and it will come, when it is necessary to do so. [Applause.]

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, it is not my intention to take very much time now, but I rise to call attention to just a few things that have been stated to this committee by some of the preceding speakers. We have given the opposition the long end of the time on general debate. The proponents of the bill did not try to monopolize the time.

Now, I am going to take a few minutes to call attention to some of the statements that have been made up to this time. In the first place, ladies and gentlemen of the House, this bill does not in any sense eliminate the Pension Bureau, and if there is any question at all about that, I will offer an amendment which will make it clear beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A comparison has been made between the cost of operating the Pension Bureau and the Veterans' Bureau. Anybody who is at all familiar with the work of the two activities knows that they are in no sense comparable. The Pension Bureau has one single, solitary thing to do, and that is to pass on soldiers' applications for pensions and to pay out the money. A large part of its work is devoted to the issuance of checks that any ordinary $1,500 clerk can do as well as a $5,000 man.

Now, what is the Veterans' Bureau engaged in? The Veterans' Bureau has the largest hospitalization program on its hands in the world. There are 30,000 patients under its care to-day. There are 58,000 guardianship cases in the charge of the Veterans' Bureau, whose affairs they supervise. The Veterans' Bureau is also conducting one of the greatest insurance agencies in the United States, with total outstanding insurance of over $3,400,000,000 with a total of 675,000 policyholders. The bonus certificate paid up insurance amounts to $3,049,000,000, and in addition to that it carries term insurance to the amount of $1,400,000,000. Members have charged up to the Veterans' Bureau as overhead the expense of operating hospitals, the expense of maintaining the medical staff, and all that sort of thing. These services go directly to the veterans and are in no sense overhead chargeable to management.

Members ought to be fair with the House in discussing this matter. I want to call your attention to the table which appears on page 214 of the hearing. If you will turn to that table, you will find an analysis of the Veterans' Bureau's appropriations, showing where every dollar goes. I am going to insert the table in the RECORD at this point:

Distribution of appropriation for 1930, United States Veterans' Bureau

	Amount	Per cent of total
Administrative expense:
Administrative salaries.....	$15,649,339	3.13
Printing and binding.....	125,000	.03
Other administrative expense ¹	2,806,657	.56
Total administrative expense.....	18,580,996	3.72
Direct expense:
Salaries (medical and hospital).....	25,044,094	5.01
Medical and hospital.....	31,650,000	6.33
Military and naval compensation.....	191,450,000	38.29
Adjusted service certificate fund.....	112,000,000	22.40
Insurance.....	115,250,000	23.05
Construction.....	6,000,000	1.20
Total direct expense.....	481,394,004	96.28
Grand total.....	499,975,000	100.00

¹ Other administrative expense includes expenses for such items as stationery, motor vehicles, telephone and telegraph, travel of employees, rents, etc.

NOTE.—If the salaries incidental to medical and hospitalization were added to administrative salaries, the total salaries would be 8.139 per cent of the grand total of all appropriations.

The total administrative expenses of the Veterans' Bureau, including administrative salaries, printing, binding, automobile transportation, telegraph and telephone charges, and other administrative expenses amount to a total of how much? The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. RANKIN] gave it fairly accurately, I think, but in comparison with the total amount expended by the bureau it amounts to only 3.72 per cent on the dollar. In other words, for every dollar the Veterans' Bureau expends for the benefit of veterans, less than 4 cents on the dollar is for overhead. It is not a question of which bureau is the most efficient. That is not involved in this matter at all. If the Veterans' Bureau is as inefficient as some of the opponents of this bill claim, they should be quite willing to consolidate under a new head so as to have some chance to make it efficient.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Dakota has expired. All time has expired on the pending section. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment. The committee amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the next committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 2, line 10, after the word "regulation," insert the words "not inconsistent with law."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the committee amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota offers an amendment to the committee amendment. The Clerk will report it.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMSON to the committee amendment: Page 2, line 10, after the word "with," insert the word "existing."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the gentleman from South Dakota to the committee amendment.

Mr. CRAMTON and Mr. WILLIAMSON rose.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, I ask for recognition.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. WILLIAMSON] is recognized.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I may say that subdivision (b) with the committee amendment provides that the administrator "shall have the power, by order or regulation not inconsistent with law, to consolidate, eliminate, or redistribute the functions of the bureaus, agencies, offices, or activities in the administration of veterans' affairs and to create new ones therein, and, by rules and regulations, shall fix the functions thereof and the duties and powers of their respective executive heads." It has been suggested that it should read, "Not inconsistent with existing law." That is the purpose of the clarifying amendment.

Mr. BURTNESS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Yes.

Mr. BURTNESS. What difference does that make?

What does it amount to when you use the word "existing"? Do you mean the law that exists at the time that this act goes into effect, or do you mean the law existing at the time the rules and regulations are adopted?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. If the proposed amendment is adopted, the language would have reference to the time the act took effect.

Mr. BURTNESS. Then if you limited it that way, you would limit it to the time of the adoption of rules and regulations that might exist later, if that situation should arise.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I do not think it affects it in any way.

Mr. BURTNESS. That may be true, but what difference does it make?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York is recognized for five minutes.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Chairman, if the committee in charge of the bill seek to satisfy everyone and to overcome opposition to the bill by apologizing for it, I will tell the committee frankly that they will so weaken their bill that there will be no justification for it. The only purpose of this bill is to concentrate all veterans' activities in one department, and the reason for that, if I understand it, is to eliminate duplication, increase the efficiency, give better service to the veterans, rid the service of a lot of useless employees, and abolish useless and costly procedure.

Now if you are going to do that, we are with you; but if you are going to apologize and going to hamper the thing so that no useless employee is going to be fired and no unnecessary bureau abolished, so that all the vices that exist in the various departments will be perpetuated, and none of the virtues retained, you make the bill worthless and it amounts to nothing. Let us be frank about it.

But I do stress the fact that the cost of the overhead in the Veterans' Bureau is out of proportion to the necessary work which they should do. [Applause.]

The trouble is they have created a great deal of unnecessary work for themselves. In my city you need a traffic policeman to get through the mob of employees at the Veterans' Bureau because there are so many employees there that they are falling over each other—applications, examinations, reexaminations, ratings, doctors' diagnosis, reratings, appeals, local board of appeals, central board of appeals. If a veteran is not crazy he will be by the time he gets his compensation. If a veteran has lost a leg, his compensation is fixed. It should not be bothered any more. So much for that. If a veteran has an organic disease contracted in line of duty during the war, it is not going to improve in three months or six months. Why these continued examinations? The hope of this bill is to eliminate the red tape, concentrate the activities, decrease cost, and increase efficiency. And instead of coming on the floor and saying that no one is going to lose his job, no bureau is to be abolished, the gentleman should say, "We are going to cut down the force that is unnecessary now and consider the veteran and not the job holder."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. The gentleman must recognize the fact that there is a very large turnover in all departments, and the committee reasoned that the turnover will be large enough to make the necessary reduction just as rapidly as there is need for making reduction.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. My experience is that as to those on the pay roll none resign and few die. The poor veterans die, waiting for compensation.

Mr. RANKIN. They die without getting compensation.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. The new administrator will have that question to deal with, and he can reorganize the Veterans' Bureau and eliminate one-half the employees in the Veterans' Bureau if he desires.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. But why should he be hampered by the amendment offered here? As a fundamental principle of good parliamentary practice, if he is charged with consolidating activities, give him power to do it. The bill reads:

Under the direction of the President the administrator of veterans' affairs shall have the power, by order or regulation, to consolidate, eliminate or redistribute.

That is fine. Why hamper it then with "not inconsistent with existing law"? The law for the purpose is in the bill. That is to be the law. Give the power now to do it. Do not limit that power with provisos, limitations, and "don'ts."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I would say to the gentleman from New York that the purpose of subdivision (b), which the gentleman has just read in part, is to enable the new administrator to reorganize the Veterans' Bureau or the Pension Bureau by eliminating any bureaus which are not necessary and which ought to be eliminated. He can redistribute their functions or create new functions. In other words, he has the power to absolutely revamp the entire business.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I favor that, and I would favor striking out the words "not inconsistent with existing law."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. That language is only to prevent the abolition of statutory bureaus, of which the Pension Bureau is one. We did not think the Pension Bureau, as a bureau, should be abolished.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for five additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. LAGUARDIA] asks unanimous consent to proceed for five additional minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I believe, Mr. Chairman, that the system adopted by the Pension Bureau in retaining reputable practicing physicians throughout the country to examine veterans is very good. I do not believe in a permanent medical staff doing paper work only. In the first place, it is impossible to secure a good physician to accept a position at $2,800 or $3,000 or $3,500. When he assumes that position, he has no hospital contacts. He is not practicing medicine. He becomes an office man. All he knows is carbon copies and files.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. There is no reason why the administrator under this set-up proposed could not dismiss as many physicians as he desired in the Veterans' Bureau, and he can utilize the positions now in the Pension Bureau.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. What I am attempting to do is to write into the record an expression of the views of this House. This medical bureaucrat that has been created in the Veterans' Bureau, these doctors, are not even pill doctors. They are carbon-copy doctors. They deal with carbon copies, and they sit around and hand out decisions. They naturally become rusty; they are not up to date; they can not keep abreast of medical science, and the veterans are not getting the medical service to which they are entitled.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. CRAMTON. As I understand it, the gentleman from New York desires to support this bill and is trying to support it, but the gentleman also feels that the Veterans' Bureau is not conducted economically. Now, without indorsing his view on that, will the gentleman explain how we are going to get economy by taking the Bureau of Pensions, which is well administered, out of its present setting and intrusting it to the same people who are now administering the Veterans' Bureau?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I will tell the gentleman. I am hoping to conserve the virtues of the Pension Bureau and lose the vices of the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. CRAMTON. That is hardly as much to be expected as Daniel to save his life in the lion's den.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Well, he got away with it.

Mr. PALMER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. PALMER. Does the gentleman wish to trade off a certainty for an uncertainty? The gentleman says the Pension Bureau is functioning satisfactorily and has had the experience of a hundred years.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Yes.

Mr. PALMER. Now, the gentleman wants to eliminate that. And the gentleman thinks justice will be done?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Yes. The gentleman asked me if I wanted to take chances. Well, I have been taking chances all my life. The Veterans' Bureau can not be worse than it is now. I hope that with the consolidation of all veterans' activities we may find a revamping of the entire procedure and practice of the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. PALMER. You may.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Oh, yes; there is nothing certain about it. Congress will still be doing business and can correct any defect that may be discovered later.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Yes.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I want to say to the gentleman that so far as the Veterans' Bureau is concerned, it has not any bureaus within it that are established by law. The whole set-up has been created by the bureau itself, so that the new administrator can revamp that bureau in any way he sees fit.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. If he does not, we will get another crack at him when the appropriation bill comes up. Congress can always control such a situation through appropriations.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Yes.

Mr. CRAMTON. Is not my friend damning this bill with faint praise?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. No; I am praising it with faint damns. [Laughter.] Now, Mr. Chairman, we all agree on one thing, whether we are for the bill or against it, that the conditions in the Veterans' Bureau are not satisfactory. I do not believe there is a man on the floor of this House who can take the stand and testify that he is satisfied with the efficiency of the administration of the Veterans' Bureau. The reason for that is that they are simply bound by red tape and practice; they are overmanned; and that is causing all of our trouble, and it is expensive. In addition, it is coming out of the pockets of the veterans.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has again expired.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I have another perfecting amendment.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, I want to be heard on the pending amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for five minutes.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, I am in doubt about supporting this amendment or the one in line 14. I do not see how I could consistently support both committee amendments. In line 10 it is provided that the administrator of veterans' affairs—

Shall have the power, by order or regulation, not inconsistent with law.

The committee wants to make it "existing law." Then in line 14 it is provided that the same administrator—

By rules and regulations shall fix the functions.

The committee proposes to strike out "not inconsistent with law." I can not see that the words "not inconsistent with law" amount to anything in either place. I do not believe the administrator can validly issue a regulation inconsistent with law; but if it is held that those words have some virtue, then, not only put them in line 10 but put them in line 14, or if they should be taken out of line 14 why put them in line 10?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I think the grammatical construction is such that "not inconsistent with law" in line 10 will also apply to the last part of the paragraph. The reason we made the shift was to prevent any doubt on that question.

Mr. CRAMTON. I think if the gentleman will consider it a little further he will conclude, if it is necessary to write in one place "order or regulation" and in the other "rules and regulations," that the grammatical construction would not save him there. I doubt whether the phrase amounts to anything.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. To be perfectly frank with the gentleman, I do not believe the amendment is particularly material. Even with it out the Pension Bureau would remain and could not be abolished by the administrator. He could not destroy what the law has created without statutory authority, and this bill does not give it to him.

Mr. CRAMTON. My thought is this: I am personally strongly opposed to mixing the Bureau of Pensions with the Veterans' Bureau. I do not think that issue hangs on these words, but I think that whether those words are in or out there is enough left in the bill so that if it becomes law as it is reported by the committee it is good-bye Pension Bureau. So these few words are quite innocent and harmless, whether they are in or out.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the committee amendment.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. STAFFORD) there were—ayes 24, noes 53.

So the amendment to the committee amendment was rejected.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, may we have the committee amendment again reported?

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the Clerk will again report the committee amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk again reported the committee amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the next committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendment: On page 2, in line 14, after the word "regulations," strike out the words "not inconsistent with law."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to that amendment. The House has just decided that when it is an order or regulation it must be not inconsistent with law. Had we not better make it clear that "rules and regulations" must also be not inconsistent with law? If so, the amendment ought not to be adopted.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I am never very much in favor of putting into a bill something that does not have any meaning and that is useless.

The grammatical construction of subdivision (b) is such that the words "not inconsistent with law" clearly apply to the last part of the paragraph. The phrase is only separated with commas and there is no need of repeating the language. Therefore these words are not necessary in line 14. This is all I care to say about it.

Mr. SWING. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

The vote of the committee just had rejecting the word "existing" as an amendment leaves the committee amendment as adopted "not inconsistent with law," which, in my humble opinion, means nothing; neither will it mean anything to have it again inserted in line 14. To say that the administrator, by regulations "not inconsistent with law," can eliminate the functions of a bureau, is to say that he may eliminate the functions of the bureau if not done by him in an illegal manner. This is all it means and nothing more. Well, that is the only power he has anyway—to proceed not in an illegal manner. If he should proceed in an illegal manner—that is, inconsistent with law—he could be stopped by the courts. Therefore the addition of the language means nothing, and therefore section (b) means that the administrator may eliminate the functions of a bureau. He may not be able to abolish the bureau—I will not argue with my distinguished chairman as to that point—but if he is able to eliminate the functions, what is there left but the shadow. Everything else is gone, and the proposal, of course, is to open the door to the elimination of the Pension Bureau. There are only two bureaus in existence that are covered by this bill; one is the Pension Bureau and the other is the Veterans' Bureau. It is certain that no one thinks they are going to eliminate the functions of the Veterans' Bureau. Therefore, if there is any reason having this language they are planning to eliminate the functions of some bureau, hence it must be the Pension Bureau, and I am personally very much opposed to that.

My committee colleague across the aisle will offer an amendment to strike out section (b), and I hope the House will adopt the amendment, because it is unnecessary and it opens the door to destroying one of the most efficient agencies the Government has to-day.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SWING. Yes.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Do I understand the gentleman to be opposed to striking out the language in line 14?

Mr. SWING. I say that the language "not inconsistent with law" means nothing.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Then the gentleman does not want it in there?

Mr. SWING. I do not care whether it is in or out.

Mr. BURTNESS. Is it the gentleman's contention that the word "existing" would change it?

Mr. SWING. I do not think so.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I offer a perfecting amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMSON: On page 2, line 15, after the word "heads," strike out the period, insert a colon, and add the following proviso: "Provided, That this subdivision shall not be so construed as to authorize the administrator to abolish the Pension Bureau."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, the contention has been made upon the floor ever since the bill was called up that the language of subdivision (b) of section 1 is such that it would result in eliminating the Pension Bureau. The amendment which I have offered is to make it clear, beyond the peradventure of a doubt, that this is not the intention and that no such construction can be given to the language.

This is all I care to say about the amendment.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I yield.

Mr. CRAMTON. As I understand, the gentleman offers an amendment at the end of the paragraph to provide that nothing herein shall be held to allow the abolition of the Bureau of Pensions. The gentleman has already stated that he does not believe in having language in a bill that does not mean anything, and hence he gives some weight to the language that is in the bill. If the administrator of veterans' affairs has the power to consolidate, eliminate, or redistribute the functions of the Pension Bureau, or, further, by rules and regulations to fix the functions of the Bureau of Pensions—that is to say, they may take away from it its functions, as has been said—why not abolish it and put it out of its misery?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I do not understand why the gentleman from Michigan insists upon putting that construction on the language when a fair interpretation of the language will not warrant such a construction. No one would construe the language in that way if charged with administering the proposed set-up.

In the first place, as I have said over and over again, the law fixes the functions of the Pension Bureau. The bill does not repeal the law creating it. The only activities this language can reach are bureaus and offices which have been set up in an administrative way by the heads of the various bureaus. These are the only ones that you can abolish, the only ones that you can consolidate, the only ones whose functions you can redistribute.

Mr. CRAMTON. Then how do you accomplish anything in the way of elimination of duplication which has been alleged? I do not know of any such duplication, but how can you eliminate it if each bureau is to continue all the functions it now exercises?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Wherever two bureaus or two offices or two activities within a statutory bureau are performing the same function, or approximately the same function, they can be consolidated. The same would apply where two or more activities in different statutory bureaus were doing the same or similar work.

Mr. CRAMTON. There are only two bureaus under consideration.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. There are a lot of bureaus, offices, and activities in the Veterans' Bureau set up by the head of the Veterans' Bureau. The same is true in the Pension Bureau. Some of these are now performing almost identical work. Why continue the duplication?

Mr. CRAMTON. He can redistribute all their functions at any time.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. He can do it, but we want the new administrator to be able to do that, and we do not want any doubt about it.

Mr. CRAMTON. Has the gentleman any thought that General Hines, as administrator of veterans' affairs, would take some action that he is authorized to-day to take but does not take with reference to divisions in the Veterans' Bureau?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I am not assuming that General Hines will be the new administrator, if the gentleman please.

Mr. CRAMTON. There are a good many gentlemen who will be much surprised if he is not.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I am assuming somebody is going to be appointed as the new administrator who will be big enough to take hold of the problem and deal with it as a business man and get rid of the duplication we have at the present time. [Applause.] I do not care whether duplication is in the Veterans' Bureau or whether it is in the Pension Bureau or whether you have bureaus or divisions in the two separate activities which ought to be consolidated and brought together, I am assuming they are going to put a man in there who is going to do just that thing. We are not going to legislate down to details; we expect that in the way of reorganization the Director of the Veterans' Bureau will direct the details of that bureau and the Commissioner of Pensions the details of the Pension Bureau, and that the administrator will act in a supervisory capacity. I shall be greatly surprised if the new administrator does not make some radical changes.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following as a substitute for the pending amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 1, in line 9, strike out the words "Bureau of Pensions."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the amendment is clearly not a substitute.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Minnesota want to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. KNUTSON. No, Mr. Chairman; I think it is so apparent that my substitute is in order that I do not.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair sustains the point of order. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. WILLIAMSON].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. KNUTSON) there were 42 ayes and 40 noes.

So the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 2, beginning in line 8 and ending in line 15, strike out subsection b.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, if you adopt this amendment of mine you carry out the idea that the President's commission, which was appointed to investigate this matter, and which was to coordinate the activities of veterans' affairs, and you carry out the idea recommended by Secretary Wilbur, who was chairman of the committee and whom we heard at length before our committee.

I want to say as a member of the committee I am not opposed to coordinating these activities. We all know that there are overlapping activities which come about under the present law, and we ought to have some system of wiping these out. If you adopt this amendment with other amendments that I shall offer we will have a bill that will provide for coordination.

I can not understand to save me the idea of the distinguished chairman of this committee when he says you consolidate and then you have to coordinate afterwards. In my mind, when you consolidate there is no use for coordinating because it is all one. This bill provides for consolidating and coordinating—

Mr. KNUTSON. And eliminating.

Mr. GASQUE. Yes; and eliminating; and if we adopt this amendment of mine with other amendments I shall offer we will carry out the idea of coordinating the activities. I want to assure you that I will never vote for a bill, regardless of what the chairman or any other member says, which provides for coordination, consolidation, and elimination. I may not understand English very well, but I can understand what these words mean.

These are the words I move to strike out:

Under the direction of the President the administrator of veterans' affairs shall have the power by order or regulation not inconsistent with law to consolidate, eliminate, or redistribute the functions of the bureaus.

What does that mean, "to eliminate or redistribute"? There would be nothing to redistribute when you have consolidated—there would be nothing left. The—agencies, offices, or activities in the administration of veterans' affairs and to create new ones therein, and, by rules and regulations, shall fix the functions thereof and the duties and powers of their respective executive heads.

Why it gives absolute power to this new administrator, this new officer, to eliminate every duty of the Pension Commissioner. When you eliminate every duty he has, what do you want a Pension Commissioner for? You transfer, as the distinguished chairman of this committee stated, the duties of the Pension Commissioner, which would devolve on the new administrator. Therefore, you have abolished the Pension Commissioner.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GASQUE. I yield.

Mr. RANKIN. Under that provision would not the director, the new administrator of the veterans' affairs, have the right to transfer the activities from one bureau to the other?

Mr. GASQUE. If you try to consolidate two agencies, in one of which there are 24,000 employees and in the other 600, what becomes of the Pension Bureau? Do not you know that the first act will be to move the Pension Bureau into the Veterans' Bureau?

Mr. KNUTSON. What they are trying to do is to give the Veterans' Bureau a blood transfusion.

Mr. GASQUE. I think that is correct.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GASQUE. Yes.

Mr. CRAMTON. I am looking at the section from the standpoint of the Bureau of Pensions, it being my thought that its functions ought not to be taken away from it. By the amendment just adopted we are assured that it will not be abolished, but under the language of subsection (b) they can send to the officials or employees of the Veterans' Bureau in the field pending applications of Civil War veterans, and they can ask all those Civil War veterans to go to Veterans' Bureau physicians for examination. They can take the issuance of all checks out of that bureau and give it to others. In other words, they will take all functions away.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Carolina has expired.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, my position on this bill, and I think the position of a good many of the members of the committee, is that we should have some legislation by which the veterans' agencies may be coordinated, so that we can cut out the overlapping work of the different institutions. I think that is as far as we should go.

I want to quote from the hearings again, when Mr. Wilbur was before the committee, while Mr. DALLINGER, a member of the committee, was asking him questions. Mr. DALLINGER said:

Mr. Secretary, the President is well known to be very much in favor of reorganizing the executive departments. Do you know whether he has arrived at a conclusion in regard to this particular phase?

Secretary WILBUR. In his message he stated that he thought these organizations should be brought together under a common head.

"Should be brought together" and "consolidated" do not mean the same thing. Secretary Wilbur went on further to say that it should be under an assistant secretary, since it is all in the same field, and he said that he thinks we can read that in the President's message—

Mr. ROWBOTTOM. You mean that he meant coordination instead of consolidation, in your opinion?

Secretary WILBUR. To be brought together.

Then he says that "brought together" is a nice word, but that consolidation bristles with antagonism, and I say so, too, and I believe every member of this committee so believes. Force these agencies together, and you will bring about nothing but antagonism and trouble, as Mr. Wilbur said, and, further, you will almost bring about revolution among the veterans of this country. I hope the amendment will prevail.

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, this amendment strikes at the very heart of the bill. We ought not to deceive ourselves. If you are going to take the heart out of the bill and leave only the husks, then we ought to vote to strike out paragraph (b).

Mr. GASQUE. It is a question of whether you favor coordination or consolidation.

Mr. COLTON. In my judgment, it means much more than that. What is coordination? This amendment is the very crux of the whole question. Gentlemen have complained here that there are too many employees in the Veterans' Bureau, and that there is too much red tape. The purpose of this bill is to cut through the red tape, and make it possible for the administrator to redistribute, to reorganize, to eliminate, to consolidate, to coordinate and bring together so that there will not be so much of this duplication that has been mentioned.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLTON. Yes. I yield.

Mr. HARE. Does the gentleman not think that when this officer redistributes the affairs, he increases the red tape?

Mr. COLTON. Not at all. It will do away with it.

Mr. HARE. If he redistributes it, enlarges it?

Mr. COLTON. Not at all. If he finds, for instance, that two employees are assigned to do exactly the same duty, he can avoid that by giving the work to one of them, and in that way he increases the efficiency, and avoids the duplication of work to which I have referred.

Mr. HARE. But he does not redistribute there, he simply consolidates.

Mr. COLTON. In that particular case he may easily avoid duplication. A score of ways could be named to avoid duplication and increase efficiency. We can split hairs on the definition of words, but, after all, we may as well face the situation. The purpose of this bill is to bring about an efficient administration of veterans' affairs. We found in our investigation and study that there is a great deal of duplication. I am in favor of giving to the administrator the power to so coordinate his work that this will be avoided.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLTON. I yield.

Mr. CRAMTON. The gentleman's criticism seems to be directed to the Veterans' Bureau. Is there any limitation in the law on the authority of the Director of the Veterans' Bureau to reorganize, as the gentleman suggests ought to be done in the interest of efficiency?

Mr. COLTON. I can not say.

Mr. CRAMTON. If he has that authority, why should we go over into the Pension Bureau and upset that office to give the authority that already exists?

Mr. COLTON. Suppose they are doing exactly the same work in the Pension Bureau that is being done in the Veterans' Bureau. The testimony shows repeated instances where that is being done, and the same thing occurs in the soldiers' home. We have expressly provided that the Bureau of Pensions shall remain and shall not be abolished. The efficiency of the bureau will be retained. How can you give to the administrator the authority to make this consolidation, to coordinate this work, unless you give him some little discretion.

I grant you that it is almost impossible to so word a law that there will not be abuses creep in here and there, but we must proceed upon the assumption that there will be an honest endeavor to avoid duplication and that can not be done now.

Mr. McKEOWN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLTON. In just a moment. It is common knowledge that there is very much duplication of effort and work in the Government service. Here is an opportunity to coordinate and consolidate the work of three activities which will not only be in the interest of economy but also efficiency. Gentlemen, imagine all sorts of possible ills arising from this movement. They are, however, imaginary. There is absolutely no foundation for most of these fears expressed here to-day.

I now yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. McKEOWN. What I want to know is if we pass this bill who will be responsible? For instance, in the new department, who will be responsible in the Pension Office?

Mr. COLTON. The ultimate authority, of course, if you went to the ultimate authority, would be the President of the United States, but generally it would be the administrator.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Utah has expired.

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Chairman, may I have five minutes more?

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

Mr. McKEOWN. Will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. COLTON. Yes.

Mr. McKEOWN. What I am trying to get at is this: If I have trouble in the Veterans' Bureau, do I have to take it to this new man whom you create, and then if he puts it up to the Pension Bureau, have I got to go again to the Pension Bureau? Will the Director of the Pension Bureau be answerable and responsible under this bill?

Mr. COLTON. The gentleman is talking about the Veterans' Bureau. We are creating an administrator of veterans' affairs.

Mr. McKEOWN. Will the head of the Veterans' Bureau be responsible for the conduct of all affairs, or will this superman be responsible?

Mr. COLTON. I know of no such office.

I do not speak of the comparative efficiency of the Bureau of Pensions or the Veterans' Bureau. The Commissioner of Pensions has not the final say as to pensions. There is an appeal from him to the Secretary of the Interior, and I have no doubt you could take an appeal to the President of the United States. There is no fundamental change along those lines at all.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield there?

Mr. COLTON. Yes.

Mr. WOODRUFF. There are many Members of the House who believe the Pension Bureau is very efficiently run under the present arrangement.

Mr. COLTON. I agree with them.

Mr. WOODRUFF. The gentleman from Utah made a distinction between the functions of the two services. Will the gentleman point out whether that distinction is of sufficient importance to make it possible to do away with the present efficiency of the bureau?

Mr. COLTON. The gentleman from Michigan by his question assumes that there will be an attempt to do away with that efficiency.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Oh, no. I do not believe there is an attempt on the part of the committee or anybody else to do away with efficiency of any activity in the Government. But that is one of the possibilities of the situation that confronts us here.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from Utah yield?

Mr. COLTON. Yes.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I thought I might answer the gentleman's question, whether the 60,000 veterans of the Spanish-American War who got into the World War will be dealt with by the old Pension Bureau or by the new administration of veterans' affairs. Under one law, as the gentleman knows, they are entitled to a certain amount of compensation, and under the World War legislation they are entitled to another. Nobody thinks of abolishing the Pension Bureau. Nobody has that intention.

Mr. COLTON. The gentleman is correct, but I was going to answer as to the duplication of activities.

Mr. WOODRUFF. The gentleman from South Dakota has called attention to the fact that veterans of the Spanish-American War receive pensions through the Pension Bureau and veterans of the World War receive compensation from the Veterans' Bureau. But under no circumstances can a man receive compensation from both of those bureaus. He has to accept either a pension under the Bureau of Pensions or compensation from the Veterans' Bureau. There is no duplication.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. That is true, that they can not receive compensation in both places; but untold thousands of them, not being able to tell in which war they received their injuries, have filed applications under both bureaus.

Mr. CRAMTON. I want to make this observation, that even the passage of this bill will not tell those veterans in which war they received their injuries. It will not change the law under which they will have to make application for pension or compensation. They would still have to make one application for pension in 1898 and another for compensation in 1918.

Mr. COLTON. The gentleman from Michigan will realize that there are now two tribunals to which those men are going, and this legislation will bring them under one head.

Mr. CRAMTON. One is for compensation and the other is for pension, and if you put them both into one tribunal you will establish a pension system for veterans of the World War.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Utah has again expired.

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Chairman, may I have five minutes more?

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for another question?

Mr. COLTON. Yes.

Mr. WOODRUFF. The gentleman states that under certain circumstances the veterans who served in both the Spanish-American War and the World War have to make applications at two points. The veterans find it necessary to select which one they will apply to. They usually know when and where they received their disability. If it was during their service in the World War they apply to the Veterans' Bureau; if it was elsewhere they apply to the Pension Bureau.

Mr. COLTON. I did not mean that. I do not think the gentleman from South Dakota meant to convey any other impression than that these thousands of cases to which he has referred—cases which are now pending in the Veterans' Bureau and in the Pension Office—were being considered by two bureaus. My point is that we will create one bureau to which all these claims will go.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLTON. Yes; I yield.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. If a man served faithfully in the Spanish-American War and in the World War, he may have a claim both in the Veterans' Bureau and in the Pension Bureau by reason of his service in the two different wars. I have cases of that kind. They can not receive compensation and pension at the same time. Therefore you have to establish contact between these two independent establishments with reference to those claims.

Mr. KNUTSON. Why?

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. The gentleman knows why, as he has handled many of these cases, because in the Pension Bureau when a Spanish-American War veteran is receiving pension and then applies to the Veterans' Bureau, said bureau can not make payments on that claim until they find out what pension the claimant is getting, if any, from the Pension Bureau.

The Pension Bureau will not make payment of a Spanish-American War claim, when the veteran has served in both wars, until it has contacted the Veterans' Bureau and ascertained the amount of compensation paid to the veteran under the World War veterans' act, and vice versa. Furthermore, the Spanish War veteran who is also a World War veteran may have two claims pending, one in the Pension Bureau and one in the Veterans' Bureau. He may be receiving $50 a month under the Pension Bureau claim for nonservice disabilities, and at that time his World War compensation may be less than $50.

So he will continue to take his Spanish-American War pension. But he may later enter a Veterans' Bureau hospital and become entitled to $80 or $90 compensation and will transfer back to the compensation benefits. So there is a duplication of work between the two departments in that respect.

Mr. COLTON. Reverting again to the question the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. WOODRUFF] asked, I call attention to the matter of writing checks. Reference has been made to the large amount of money distributed by the Pension Bureau. A great part of that money is distributed simply by writing checks. That same kind of service is being performed in the Veterans' Bureau. The same agency could carry on that work in one bureau and avoid much duplication.

In the matter of field examinations, a man is sent all the way across the continent to make an examination in a pension case. It is not of such a nature that experts are required. That man could just as well look after similar work that arises in other activities while on his trip.

In the matter of medical examinations for disability in the Pension Bureau the same board which makes the examination could make an examination for compensation for a veteran. The same doctors could make the examination of the veteran. It is conservatively estimated that $9,000,000 could be saved in the matter of hospitalization by coordinating and bringing together the three activities. It is just a plain, common-sense proposition, gentlemen. If you strike out the power, as proposed by this amendment, to bring together these agencies, if you strike out the power for the coordination of the work, if you strike out the power to eliminate duplication of effort, you might just as well kill the bill. This amendment strikes out the very backbone, core, and heart of this measure. It will weaken it so much that you will defeat the very purpose of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has again expired.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, there seems to be some misconception as to the character of this legislation. It originated with the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation after a time when the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. FITZGERALD, and the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. Bulwinkle, were appointed a committee to survey the soldiers' homes throughout the United States. They became convinced that the Veterans' Bureau hospitals and the soldiers' homes should be consolidated. It then became apparent that some consolidation or coordination of the Pension Bureau and the Veterans' Bureau would be necessary.

I think much of the objection to this legislation does not arise because of the fact that there is fear that the Pension Bureau is going to be eliminated, because it will not be eliminated, but judging from the opposition I see it is because of fear on the part of some Members of the House that some of the pension committees will be eliminated. [Applause.]

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I can not yield at this time to anybody.

Mr. CRAMTON. I am not on any pension committee, but I would like to ask just how could a thing like that happen from this bill.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. It would not happen, because all of the committees will continue. I said it was on account of fear that it might happen.

Mr. KNUTSON. Oh, we have ordinary intelligence.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I have arisen to tell the gentlemen that they need not have any such fear, because no one will abolish the Pension Bureau and no one will abolish any of the committees.

With reference to pensions, all World War veterans will come to a pension system in this country sooner or later, and all pensions will be paid through the Veterans' Bureau and not by any pension committee or Pension Bureau. The files in the Veterans' Bureau are 2 or 3 feet high—

Mr. KNUTSON (interposing). And the gentleman wants to make them thicker?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. No. Every pension claim that would be filed in the United States, practically without exception, has already been filed in the Veterans' Bureau in an application for compensation, and there will not be two organizations—one the Veterans' Bureau and the other the Pension Bureau—passing on World War pension and compensation claims. As a matter of fact, within a day after any pension committee reports a pension bill to this House the Veterans' Committee, which has that jurisdiction, will report a proportional compensation bill, a proportion of the service-connected rating on non-service-connected cases. The gentlemen who are opposing this bill want more bureaus instead of less bureaus.

This legislation has been carefully considered by many committees. It has been carefully considered by many veteran organizations. The last convention of the American Legion, at Louisville, Ky., passed a resolution that the national legislative committee be, and it hereby is, authorized and directed to endeavor to procure legislation tending to effect the amalgamation of the Pension Bureau, Veterans' Bureau, and National Soldiers' Home.

Mr. KNUTSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. No; I do not yield.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, another one of the three great organizations, through its legislative representative, Captain Bettelheim, said to-day the Veterans of Foreign Wars favor this consolidation. The Disabled American Veterans have taken the same action.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I do not.

The reason these organizations have wanted this legislation is not because of these bureaus. It is because of one great fundamental desire. They want the veterans of all wars of the United States treated alike. [Applause.] There is no reason in the world why a man with one leg shot off in the Civil War should be treated differently from a man who had a leg shot off in the World War. There is no reason in the world why a man who was a colonel in the war or a private in the war should be treated differently.

This attack on subdivision (b) is camouflage and is intended to indirectly and in a round-the-corner way knife this bill. This vote is the whole thing. If you eliminate this section at this time, you might as well adjourn for to-day. The members of this committee ought to know that this is the real vote.

No one intends to injure the Pension Bureau. It will be allowed to run and it will rate Civil War cases.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Dakota has expired.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for five additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota asks unanimous consent to proceed for five additional minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I want to finish the statement I was making. There is no intention of having any other bureau than the Pension Bureau pass on Civil War pensions or on Spanish-American War pensions. No one doubts but that the Pension Bureau is doing a good job and they ought to be allowed to continue to do that job. Nevertheless somewhere in this Government there should be some way of coordinating so we will not have the trouble we have to-day between the Veterans' Bureau and the Pension Bureau. Sixty thousand men come under the jurisdiction of both bureaus. In addition, we ought to have the 50 Veterans' Bureau hospitals and the 11 soldiers' homes consolidated.

I expect to offer an amendment which will continue the Board of Managers of the Soldiers' Home in an advisory capacity for five years. Some of those men are honest, able, and intelligent, and this Government can not afford not to secure their valuable services in this coordination or consolidation period.

I now yield to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. WOODRUFF].

Mr. WOODRUFF. The gentleman has stated the position of certain World War veterans' organizations as regards this proposed consolidation. Does the gentleman know of any action taken by the Spanish-American War veterans' organization or the Civil War veterans' organization in approval of this particular proposal?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I will say to the gentleman that at one time there was a meeting in this city of those organizations and they had an agreement. I am not certain about what happened, and I do not recall that the Spanish-American War organization or the Civil War organization have indorsed this proposal. If they have, I do not know about it.

Mr. WOODRUFF. I will agree with the gentleman that this particular amendment is, perhaps, not desirable; I will agree with him that some legislation along this line ought to be enacted, but I do not agree with him if he for a minute believes that anybody in the Veterans' Bureau ought to be given jurisdiction over any of the activities of the Pension Bureau. [Applause.]

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I will say to the gentleman that we know perfectly well that, so far as the Civil War veterans and the Spanish-American War veterans are concerned, the Pension Bureau is going to function and that, so far as the World War veterans are concerned, pensions for those veterans, when they come, are going to be administered in the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. CRAMTON. Does not the gentleman think that inasmuch as this bill proposes the swallowing up of the Bureau of Pensions and possibly destroying all of its functions, that before Congress acts we ought to have some expression from the organizations of Civil War veterans and Spanish-American War veterans?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I do not think so and for this reason: Every Civil War veteran who will get a pension, with perhaps a dozen exceptions, is already on the roll, and the pension is going to be paid until he dies.

Mr. CRAMTON. The difficulty is this: If we put that kind of legislation through, there are so many more World War veterans than there are the others that the whole thought of Congress is going to be directed toward the World War veterans and no more attention paid to the wants of the others than this committee has paid to those organizations in connection with this bill.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Let me say to the gentleman that the Spanish-American War veterans never secured any legislation until the World War veterans came back, appeared before committees, and secured it for them. [Applause.]

The first thing that the Spanish-American War veterans ever secured was at the time that Captain Mattocks and myself appeared before the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and opened the Veterans' Bureau hospitals to the Spanish War veterans. You do not need to be afraid that the veterans of one war are going to injure the veterans of another.

Mr. KNUTSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I yield.

Mr. KNUTSON. There is no record in the Pension Committee that representatives of World War organizations appeared in behalf of the Spanish-American War veterans; and let me say to the gentleman that the Spanish War veterans can speak for themselves, and they got the pension when they asked for it.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Yes; and I notice they came to us and we presented their claims before the congressional committees.

Mr. KNUTSON. What committee?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. The Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, where out of order we opened the veterans' hospitals to the veterans of the Spanish-American War, contrary to the rules of the House.

Mr. CONNERY. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. CONNERY. I want to say to the gentleman that I am not in accord with all of his ideas and I intend to vote against this bill—

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. May I ask the gentleman whether he voted for it when it was before the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation?

Mr. CONNERY. No; I did not. Every member of the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation has done everything in his power for the Spanish-American War veterans, to the extent of opening the hospitals under the Veterans' Bureau, and we would do more if it were in our power.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. If there were anything more they wanted.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Will the gentleman yield so that I may confirm what the gentleman has just stated with regard to the interest every veteran of the World War has in the welfare of the Spanish-American and Civil War veterans and their dependents?

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Dakota has again expired.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for two more minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Dakota?

There was no objection.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. In this connection I want to add the statement that nobody is going to hurt the veterans of the Civil War in any way.

I now yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. This bill does not consolidate the Pension Bureau under the Veterans' Bureau. This bill creates a new bureau to handle all veterans' affairs. On page 107 of the hearings former Senator Rice W. Means testified as follows:

I have authority from 42,000 survivors of the Civil War—written authority—to speak for them before this committee. I am authorized to officially represent the Spanish-American War Veterans. As to those two, they have expressed themselves in their conventions as being favorable to a joining of all agencies extending relief to veterans of this country under one head. They have both, by resolution, favored the placing of these agencies under the Secretary of the Interior. I do not believe they are married to that particular procedure at all.

This shows that the organizations of Spanish-American War and Civil War veterans are also in favor of consolidation, and that they are not wedded to the particular plan of consolidating under the Secretary of the Interior. What would be the practical difference if we enacted this bill and several days after the bill becomes law the present Secretary of the Interior should resign from the service? The President would be filling the two positions, and what would be the actual difference in the effect if we consolidated under the Interior Department, in so far as a particular man running the consolidated veteran activities is concerned?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Why, there is no difference. It is a consolidation, call it by any name you please. It will not be a consolidation under the Veterans' Bureau, but a consolidation under a new bureau to be organized by the President.

Mr. HOWARD rose.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I yield to the gentleman from Nebraska, if I have any time left.

Mr. HOWARD. Frankly, I may say to the gentleman I have not made much study of this bill, but I would like to have him give me his own interpretation of the language beginning at line 21, page 2, with the word "upon." If the gentleman will read that and give me his interpretation of it, I think we will all understand it a good deal better from his viewpoint.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. It means there will be an administrator of veterans' affairs and that all the duties of all these bureaus, boards, and departments named here will be conferred upon this one man so he can coordinate their activities and treat the soldiers of all wars alike.

Mr. HOWARD. Does it mean that the Commissioner of Pensions is to be eliminated?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. No; not at all.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate upon this section and all amendments thereto close in 10 minutes.

Mr. CRAMTON. On this amendment, but not on the section.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I modify my request and ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment close in 15 minutes.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask how much time that gives gentlemen on this side? I do not want to object, Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will agree to give us the time we want over here.

The CHAIRMAN. Let the Chair state that it is not within the power of the gentleman from South Dakota to agree to assign time to anybody. The power of recognition is in the Chair.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Chairman, I ask that the request be amended and the time changed to 20 minutes.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I have no objection to that and will so modify my request.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota asks unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment be limited to 20 minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. CONNERY. Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I do not wish to take up much time of the committee. I did not have an opportunity to talk during general debate, and that is why I am taking this time under the 5-minute rule.

When we who are on the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation were investigating the veterans' hospitals I went through the soldiers' homes up in Maine and Massachusetts and every Spanish War veteran and every Civil War veteran I met there I asked how they felt about this consolidation or about being under the Veterans' Bureau or anybody else except the Pension Bureau, and they said they wanted to stay under the Interior Department.

I do not know whether the statement of the commander of the Spanish War veterans that was read by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. SCHAFER], represented the wishes of the Spanish War veterans throughout the United States, but my belief from talking with these men is that they do not want this bill to pass. They want to stay under the Pension Bureau.

Speaking for the World War veterans I think every Member of this House will agree that every member of the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation has tried at all times since its foundation to do everything that could be done not only for the Spanish War veterans and the World War veterans, but also for the Civil War veterans. Our desire has been to give them everything we possibly could. We opened up the hospitals to allow the veterans of all wars to enter them.

In this bill, which provides for the consolidation of the Pension Bureau under the Veterans' Bureau or to connect all veterans' activities under one bureau, we can look at it in any way we want, but if we take the Pension Bureau out of the bill, what is the use of passing the bill at all. It consolidates what? The Veterans' Bureau and the soldiers' homes of the United States, and that is all, and leaves the Pension Bureau exactly where it is. If you are basing your argument on the ground of economy or efficiency, that does not do you a bit of good. You are not saving a cent by passing a bill which leaves the Pension Bureau where it is.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONNERY. Yes; I will be pleased to yield.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Is my friend of the opinion that by putting the Pension Bureau under this proposed bureau, the expenses of running the Pension Bureau would be lessened?

Mr. CONNERY. I do not see how they would be.

Mr. WOODRUFF. I do not see it at all.

Mr. CONNERY. If you just put it on a line with the Veterans' Bureau or connect it with the Veterans' Bureau, there is not a cent saved to the Government.

Mr. WOODRUFF. I agree with the gentleman, and, certainly, the service to the beneficiaries whose interests are now looked after by the Pension Bureau, would not be improved.

Mr. CONNERY. No; I do not think so; and right there I want to say that we have heard a lot of talk to-day in reference to the Veterans' Bureau, and how much superior the Pension Bureau is. I disagree with that. We have thousands of disabled men being taken care of by the Veterans' Bureau. Under the Pension Bureau you have the law laid down clearly and distinctly, telling you how much they will get a month, exactly what the Pension Bureau is to do. In the Pension Bureau you have pensions of $30, $50, or $72, you have the rates, you have doctors examine the men, you have everything laid out in a manner that is easy for the bureau to follow, but you have a very difficult and different condition in the Veterans' Bureau. Now, I want to pay a tribute to the Veterans' Bureau, and particularly to the director. The Lord knows I have heckled them enough in committee and out, asking them why they do not do this and why they do not do that, but I think next to the office of the President of the United States General Hines has the most difficult job in the United States to-day. I have a great personal esteem for General Hines and I have always admired the way in which he has conducted himself in a position which requires the greatest tact, diplomacy, humanity, and courage. The present director of the bureau is doing, I think, a magnificent work. [Applause.]

Mr. McCORMACK of Massachusetts. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONNERY. I yield.

Mr. McCORMACK of Massachusetts. Has the gentleman any opinion as to whether or not the pension bill for the World War veterans, the disabled service-connected veterans, is the preferable course for Congress to take?

Mr. CONNERY. Does the Gentleman mean the Swick bill?

Mr. McCORMACK of Massachusetts. Yes.

Mr. CONNERY. I am in favor of that bill. I am in favor of taking care equally of the veterans of the World War, the Spanish War veterans, and the Civil War veterans, and the veterans of every war we have been in. [Applause.]

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. Chairman, it is with great deference that I address a little thought to this question, and first I want to say that I am not of those who are critical of the powers that be in so far as dealing with the veterans are concerned. They have great powers and great responsibilities. I have been dealing with them for 13 or 14 years, and by and large they try to do the right thing by the veterans.

However, I have always had a peculiar affection for the Pension Bureau, because we have always been able, so far as I am concerned, to get more prompt service there, and we have been generally satisfied with their services from our standpoint.

The gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. JOHNSON] said that there was no idea of abolishing the Pension Bureau, and yet he said it would be absorbed in the new institution. He said the pensions are going to be paid by the Veterans' Bureau. Well, that means that there is going to be no Pension Bureau.

Now, I am not in favor of that. A minute ago a comparison was made as to the provisions in the Veterans' Bureau, and the difference between that and the Pension Bureau. They said that in the Veterans' Bureau there were all of these different rates but there was a flat rate in the Pension Bureau. My friend overlooks the law. We have the Spanish veterans to-day getting $20 a month, and there is a rate of $30, and others get as high as $50 a month. So the same rules are applied in a moderate degree to both the Pension Bureau and the Veterans' Bureau, but in a more scientific way in the Pension Bureau than in the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEVENSON. Yes.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. The gentleman stated that I said that the Pension Bureau would be absorbed in the new institution.

Mr. STEVENSON. No; I did not refer to the gentleman; I referred to the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. JOHNSON].

Now, that being the case, that they are not going to abolish the Pension Bureau, why talk about taking this provision out of here? You have already said that we are not going to abolish it by the amendment of the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. WILLIAMSON]. That is proper that it should not be abolished, but when it comes to providing that the functions of the Pension Bureau and the manner of dealing with the agency may be absolutely subverted by the man at the head of the new superbureau—and you seem to be very earnestly in favor of keeping that in—which means that there will be a dissolution by taking away the powers and functions of the bureau. Those opposing this amendment are merely fighting to keep the concealed power in the bill to indirectly destroy the Pension Bureau.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEVENSON. Yes.

Mr. KNUTSON. Does not the gentleman believe that the passage of this bill in its present form would render the Pension Bureau a memory within 10 years?

Mr. STEVENSON. Yes. It will be denatured from the day that it is passed.

Mr. KNUTSON. It will be dehydrated.

Mr. STEVENSON. It will be decapitated. It means the destruction of the Pension Bureau if you leave subdivision (b) in the bill. So far as I am concerned I have very few veterans who draw their pay from the Pension Bureau. I have Spanish-American veterans that do. By the way, there is a great deal of talk here about the fact that they can not draw twice. I have a constituent who was in the Spanish-American War and who was getting $20 a month. He was in the World War, a captain, as he went into the line-up at home, and a major in the field when they were breaking Hindenburg's line, where he was leading his men. He has not got retirement. They held him 15 per cent disabled, and put him on at $15 a month compensation, and took away the $20 a month that he was getting as a Spanish-American War veteran. That is what they did to him, and I am having a hard time getting him retired, but I am going to do it.

Mr. MOUSER. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MOUSER: Page 1, line 9, strike out the words "The Bureau of Pensions."

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order against the amendment that another amendment is now pending.

Mr. MOUSER. If there is another amendment now pending, the point of order is well taken.

The CHAIRMAN. There is an amendment pending offered by the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, if no one else desires recognition, I ask recognition. The assertion has repeatedly been made upon the floor here that the Spanish-American and Civil War veterans have been left out of the picture. Anybody who will take the trouble to read the hearings will see that they have not been left out of the picture; that they were represented before our committee; that they have indorsed a bill practically on all fours with the bill now before the committee. There is no man in the House who can vote against this bill without voting against the recommendation of every veterans' organization in the country. I do not care what organization you pick out.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HULL of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Not at this time. If gentlemen will turn to page 141 of the committee hearings they will find the bill which was submitted by these various organizations to the committee. The bill for which these organizations at that time desired to substitute their bill was H. R. 6141, which provided for a consolidation in the Veterans' Bureau. Their bill set up an independent department, to be known as the department of veterans' affairs, with a director general at its head. If you will compare the two bills, you will find they are practically identical, as to the method of consolidation pursued. Their bill lacks many of the essentials in detail necessary to the proposed consolidation, and therefore we could not utilize that bill as drawn.

We drafted our own bill, but we did the very thing they sought to do, namely, set up an independent activity responsible directly to the President, into which could be taken the National Home, Veterans' Bureau, and the Pension Bureau upon exactly the same plane. In the bill now before you the committee was careful to so draft the measure that none of the activities that are brought in under one head could justly say that it was unfairly treated as compared with the other two. By amendment on the floor we have given preference by a proviso already adopted to the Pension Bureau to make certain that the bureau will remain intact. Let me assure gentlemen who have any fear that the Pension Bureau will not continue to function, that the law establishes the duties of the Pension Bureau and prescribes its functions. We are not changing these. Pensions will be taken care of as they are now, and everybody who has now a pensionable status will continue to be served under the new set-up by the Pension Bureau.

Mr. GREEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Yes.

Mr. GREEN. I am particularly interested in the establishment of a soldiers' home. I am wondering what effect this bill will have, if it passes, on the establishment of soldiers' homes. Could a soldiers' home be automatically established without further legislation?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. We are transferring to the new administrator of veterans' affairs the powers and functions of the National Home Board. There are ample funds already authorized for the Veterans' Bureau and national homes to proceed with the necessary hospital and domiciliary program. These funds can be utilized by the new administrator in exactly the same manner as they can now be used by the National Home Board and the Veterans' Bureau, and that means that if the administrator sees fit to go down into Florida or into Louisiana or into any other Southern State and establish a new hospital or home he can do so, provided that the bill is not mutilated to a point where it would become innocuous.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Dakota has expired.

Mr. SCHAFER of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the time be extended for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have two or three minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the Chair understand that the gentleman from South Carolina objects?

Mr. GASQUE. Not if I can get two or three minutes. If not, I shall object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. BANKHEAD. The time for debate has been fixed by order of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. Five minutes of debate remains. The gentleman from Wisconsin asks unanimous consent that the gentleman from South Dakota may have five minutes. Objection is heard.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I want only two minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota asks unanimous consent to proceed for two additional minutes. Is there objection?

Mr. STEVENSON. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, the balance of the time, as I understand, is to be given to my colleague from South Carolina [Mr. GASQUE].

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from South Carolina after the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. WILLIAMSON].

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I want to make just one more statement, namely, that this or a similar bill has been under consideration by the committee for two years. I am telling the absolute truth when I say that during that entire time I have received only one letter from a Spanish-American War veteran in opposition to the bill. That is all. I have not received a single, solitary one from a veteran of the Civil War. It seems to me, if there had been any opposition on the part of these veterans, that the chairman of the committee would have heard of it. The opposition comes from the Pension Bureau and the national home people, and it is their fight which is being fought by enthusiastic followers on this floor, and not a fight for the veterans. They are for the bill.

That is all I care to say. I yield the rest of my time to the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. GASQUE].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Dakota yields back one minute. The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. GASQUE] is recognized for four minutes.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I wanted to say a word in regard to what the distinguished chairman of the committee has stated I want to say, that this particular bill that we are considering has never had any hearings held on it. This particular bill I had never seen, as a member of the committee, except once, when it was reported out. We did hold hearings on the bill which the leaders of the World War veterans' organizations have indorsed. I would much rather vote for that bill than vote for this bill. That bill that we had hearings on proposed to confine all the activities for disabled veterans to the Veterans' Bureau, but it did not go ahead and provide that the Veterans' Bureau shall have the right to eliminate, consolidate, and so forth.

Mr. HULL of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield there?

Mr. GASQUE. Yes.

Mr. HULL of Wisconsin. When we had the hearings the matter of calling up that particular bill was discussed, and the committee almost unanimously reported against reporting it out.

Mr. GASQUE. Yes; but I understand that when the committee reported the bill many of the members of the committee were sick, and we did not have a full meeting of the committee at that time; but at another time it was stated by the chairman the committee unanimously decided to report this bill.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. They were against the other bill.

Mr. GASQUE. The bill you refer to is the bill these hearings were held on. It is not nearly so pernicious a bill as the one before the committee.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. The bill now before the committee is another bill.

Mr. GASQUE. Yes; that is the point I make. The veterans' organizations then never had a chance to consider this bill.

Mr. KNUTSON. No; the veterans' organizations have not had a chance to consider this bill.

Mr. GASQUE. The veterans' organizations did indorse a bill and did it as a compromise, because all the other organizations except the American Legion were opposed to the bill we had hearings on in the committee. Mr. Means said that he had taken this bill up with the other organizations, and said they indorsed a bill he submitted. The bill they compromised upon is practically the bill you will vote upon, if you vote for the amendment I shall offer.

Mr. MOUSER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GASQUE. Yes.

Mr. MOUSER. Then the different organizations did not go on record as favoring this particular bill?

Mr. GASQUE. They did not. We do not know what they think about it. I hope, gentlemen, you will give this point careful consideration before you vote on this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. GASQUE].

Mr. STAFFORD. A division, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. A division is demanded.

The committee divided; and there were—ayes 72, noes 56.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I ask for tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed Mr. WILLIAMSON and Mr. GASQUE to act as tellers.

The committee again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 96, noes 63.

So the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. TILSON] having resumed the chair, Mr. HALE, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, having had under consideration the bill (H. R. 10630) to authorize the President to consolidate and coordinate governmental activities affecting war veterans, reported that that committee had come to no resolution thereon.

NATIONAL PARK OR PRIVATE POWER PERMIT

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD with reference to the bill H. R. 26, and in connection with my remarks to include certain extraneous matter not my own remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the RECORD with reference to the bill H. R. 26 and to insert certain matters, as indicated. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, under the leave granted me today I desire to bring to the attention of the House further information and comment in connection with the bill (H. R. 26) providing for the acquisition of lands needed for park, parkway, and playground purposes in the National Capital and its environs.

Passage of this bill is now fought openly by Elisha Hanson, who signs himself "Attorney for the Potomac River Corporation." That is the subsidiary corporation of the Byllesby power interests which seeks Federal permit to develop power at the Great Falls of the Potomac.

The Washington Post, of Sunday, April 6, carried a letter signed by him, in which he stated in part:

Your editorial of April 3 on the Potomac Valley apparently is based upon the false surmise that the Cramton bill, if enacted, will carry out the purpose of preserving the Potomac Valley for the Nation at national expense. Such, however, is not the case. As stated by Mr. CRAMTON himself in his appearance before the Senate committee on March 13, all that the Federal Government will do is to contribute a portion of the original cost of acquiring these lands and then forever fasten upon the taxpayers of near-by Maryland and Virginia the obligation of perpetually maintaining them for park purposes. If, as you suggest, "the preservation of the Potomac Valley primarily as a park adorning the National Capital is a national duty," then Mr. CRAMTON and the Congress should meet that issue squarely, instead of seeking to transfer the Nation's duty to a few thousand citizens of Maryland and Virginia.

That statement is entirely incorrect, as to the cost of maintenance of the George Washington Memorial Parkway if and when it comes into existence as proposed in H. R. 26, intended to preserve the scenic beauties of the Potomac area Mr. Hanson refers to. I am sure Mr. Hanson has had no thought or purpose of misleading the readers of the Post and can only conclude he has not read H. R. 26 with care, and did not honor me by paying close attention to my statement before the Senate committee. If he had done, either he would know it to be the fact that H. R. 26 proposes, and I have urged the perpetual maintenance, of the George Washington Memorial Parkway at the sole expense of the Federal Government, and nothing is to be fastened on the taxpayers of near-by Maryland and Virginia for that purpose.

The bill does provide for maintenance of the Rock Creek and Anacostia Parks into adjacent Maryland by adjacent Maryland taxpayers, but that does not conflict with any plans of the Potomac River Co.

Further, Mr. Hanson, the attorney for the Potomac River Corporation, which company seeks a permit to develop power at Great Falls, gives much emphasis to what he calls the "suppression" of the minority statement of General Jadwin last August as a member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Inasmuch as General Jadwin was himself the chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission at the close of the last fiscal year it is to be presumed that he could have secured the inclusion of any minority statement he desired in their report for that fiscal year. Evidently he did not care to emphasize his opposition to the views of the other 10 members of the commission to that extent. Certainly until General Jadwin indicates some feeling that his views have been "suppressed" by the Planning Commission Mr. Hanson does not need to worry about it.

So far as the House of Representatives is concerned, the views of both General Jadwin and Major Somervell were brought to the attention of the House as fully as possible before H. R. 26, the bill in controversy for the establishment of a park at Great Falls, came up for consideration in the House. The bill was considered in the House on Thursday, January 30. In the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of Tuesday, January 28, and again in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of Thursday, January 30, appears the General Jadwin statement in full, once inserted at the request of Representative WILSON, of Louisiana, and again at the request of Representative McDUFFIE, of Alabama.

In my principal address on this bill in the House on Monday, January 27, I referred to the views of Major Somervell and placed in the RECORD in full the letter of Major Somervell to Representative WILLIAM E. HULL, of Illinois, in which letter was thus first given to the public by me the $100,000,000 waste conclusion of the major. Both the Jadwin and Somervell views were, therefore, before the House, and, notwithstanding, on Thursday, January 30, the House proceeded to pass H. R. 26 by a vote of 199 to 24.

I have wondered that the power company that is fighting this park bill has not made complaint at the "suppression" of the Hanson views with reference to H. R. 26. The identical predecessor of this bill was the subject of hearings in the Seventieth Congress, a year ago, before the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House and the Committee on the District of Columbia of the Senate, both hearings being publicly announced in advance, but no one appeared in opposition to the bill and the views of Mr. Elisha Hanson, attorney for the Potomac River Corporation, appear to have been "suppressed" at that time. In this Congress H. R. 26 was the subject of an announced public hearing before the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House and also the Committee on Rules of the House, in December, 1929, and January, 1930, respectively, and still the views of Mr. Elisha Hanson, of the Potomac River Corporation, continued to be "suppressed." One may have a suspicion that Mr. Hanson thought that his own quiet and unobtrusive personal activities had killed the bill, but this did not prove to be the case, and it was not until the bill had passed the House and was pending before the Senate committee that Mr. Elisha Hanson, attorney for the Potomac River Corporation, gave any public expression to his very definite and positive, but not disinterested, views concerning the proposed park at Great Falls. It is apparent that the real "suppression" of views in connection with this legislation has to do with the Elisha Hanson views, which were only presented publicly to Congress after he was surprised by the great victory gained by the legislation in the House and driven to abandon his more unobtrusive methods and take up a public activity in behalf of his corporation.

The Hanson and Somervell theory that all is loss save dollars does not enthrone either Washington or the Nation. Not one organization of residents of Washington or of near-by Virginia and Maryland has indorsed that doctrine, but all support the park program proposed by H. R. 26. The Washington Times yesterday said, editorially:

THERE MUST BE NO POWER GRAB IN POTOMAC RIVER VALLEY

There must be no electric power grab at Great Falls and in the Potomac River gorge, and the chances are largely against there being any.

Congress isn't made up of schoolboys, and Congress isn't so tied to the interests of the Power Trust as to permit any of its units getting a grip in an area that will be extremely useful to the Nation in the future.

This Potomac River Valley, from Great Falls to Washington, is admittedly one of the most naturally beautiful spots in the world. It is nothing short of a national duty that this region shall be preserved for the Nation for such use as it may desire to make of it.

As a magnificent park, contemplated in the Cramton bill, it would be exclusively in the hands of the Federal Government, which, besides developing it for park purposes, would still retain the right to hydroelectric development if that ever became necessary for Washington and the greater city that will grow from here along the hills overlooking the river's gorge.

That's pretty smooth talk about a private commercial concern developing hydroelectricity while the Government does the job of park development. Any man with brains can see that the time would come when there would be conflict between the Government and the private interests and when the courts would be filled with litigation.

There must be no opportunity for legal conflicts, no matter what the financial benefits might be if private capital were allowed to get a grip on things. Uncle Sam must be the sole and only boss. He can not surrender any rights in this splendid river territory, to all intents and purposes part of the Federal National Capital.

And the New York Times of Tuesday carried this most impressive statement in its editorial column:

SAVING THE POTOMAC

It was said of certain men of old that they had eyes, yet saw not. The utility companies and their engineers who are opposing the Cramton bill to preserve the gorge of the Potomac at Washington are laying themselves open to that rebuke. Here is a project which has the support of every responsible group interested in preserving natural scenery and adding to the park areas which form the proper playground of the people. It is designed to exploit for public rather than for private purposes this "region of crags and cataracts" which a kindly Providence has set down almost at the gate of the National Capital. Thousands now enjoy it; tens of thousands will enjoy it in the years to come when it has been made a park and joined with the other scenic and historic attractions of the region by the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the river. Only the public utilities are opposed to the bill, raising against it the old cry of "economic waste."

In this case that argument is peculiarly specious. The engineers first figured out that the waste would amount to $48,000,000, representing mainly the doubtful savings in the regional electric-light bill resulting from the use of water power. As the support of the bill became more vigorous, they sharpened their pencils and announced that the loss would be at least $100,000,000. Anxious to reverse the course of nature and turn diamonds into coal, they calmly proceed upon the assumption that the park the Federal commission would create there would in itself involve no economic gain. As well leave the scenery out of Niagara or the parkways out of Westchester.

In Monday's Times appeared a dispatch from Washington recording the greatest traffic jam in the history of the city. What brought 75,000 automobiles and 10 excursion trains to the Capital on a rainy Sunday in April? Congress? It was not in session. The President? He was off fishing on the Rapidan. Mount Vernon? It is closed on Sunday. An "industrialized valley," like the one the engineers waxed so eloquent about in their attack on the Cramton bill before the Senate committee? It is not yet in existence. "What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed, shaken in the wind?" Not quite—a mile or two of cherry trees in bloom along the Potomac by the Lincoln Memorial.

Let the engineers learn to figure such imponderables before they presume to give out statements about "economic waste" in the valley of the Potomac. What makes their contentions all the more absurd is that the rights of the utilities are fully protected, Congress having explicitly reserved the right to authorize whatever navigation, flood control, or power projects the future may render desirable. All that the Cramton bill does is to put scenery first.

In the Washington Star of yesterday, Mr. Cyrus Kehr resorted to satire to express himself on the Somervell $100,000,000 waste, saying, in part:

MILLIONS OF POTENTIAL CAPITAL VALUES UNUSED

Among Washington people are found impractical dreamers whose activities need to be curbed, and what has previously been done by similar dreamers should be undone. The trouble with those dreamers is that they have an absurd view of values. They fail to see the value of money and means whereby money can be acquired.

In places throughout the city there are small pieces of land which do not earn money at all and could be made to do so. Many of these pieces could be leased to receive buildings, the builders paying a good land rental. Franklin Park, Lafayette Park, Thomas Circle, Washington Circle, Meridian Park, and other such tracts are not now used. They are idle land. They are well suited for the erection of apartment houses and hotels and groceries and filling stations. Along both borders of Rock Creek Park there are tracts covered with trees, and are idle.

Long-time leases, permitting erection of residences and apartment houses and filling stations, would bring a large revenue. The vacant land around the Capitol and around the Library of Congress would have large values for long-time leases, bringing good yearly revenues. Nearly all of the Mall and Potomac Park are idle land and well suited for various kinds of building by individuals or companies taking long-time leases and paying their rentals annually or semiannually into the District or National Treasury. Some of these dreamers might in a sentimental way object to the leasing of such grounds on which there are fine trees requiring removal to make room for buildings. For example, the large old trees on the Capitol Grounds. Manifestly, objection by such dreamers should be ignored. That brings me to say that in parts of Rock Creek Park which are too hilly to receive buildings the larger trees might be removed for lumber or for fuel, and money thus received added to the public revenues. Those trees now stand there doing nothing.

But in addition to the large aggregate of rentals, the buildings put on these lands will be taxable. The value of those privately owned buildings will be very large. Recently the Evening Star mentioned that in Chicago an unoccupied tract of land surrounded by occupied lands is to receive a group of buildings costing about $10,000,000. That will be a fine item for taxation by the city of Chicago. On the unused publicly owned lands here in Washington buildings of equally large value may be erected. Then we shall have rentals, plus taxes, making aggregates approaching the financial Government needs.

Money is of very large importance.

ADDRESS OF HON. S. D. McREYNOLDS

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks by printing in the RECORD a very able address delivered by my colleague [Mr. McREYNOLDS] before the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, urging a further improvement and development of the Tennessee River.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Tennessee asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks by printing the address of his colleague [Mr. McREYNOLDS] before the Committee on Rivers and Harbors urging the further improvement and development of the Tennessee River. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The address was as follows:

IMPROVEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE TENNESSEE RIVER

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, we, as members of the Tennessee delegation, are before you to-day requesting you to indorse and place in whatever bill is reported out by this committee the project for the improvement of the Tennessee River, as outlined by the recent submission by General Brown, the Chief Engineer of the War Department, of a full and complete report of the Tennessee River and its tributaries, and recommendation therein. The final report, about which I speak, of the survey of the Tennessee River and its tributaries, which has been placed in your hands, is the most complete that has ever been submitted to Congress in reference to any river. This committee is to be congratulated upon its wisdom exercised in authorizing the survey of the Tennessee River.

The first appropriation of $200,000 was made in 1922, and in 1926 and 1927 this authorization was raised to $790,000, and in 1928, $300,000 was appropriated—$200,000 to be spent on complete investigation, which was to be made of the Cove Creek Dam site, and $100,000 to complete the survey of the Tennessee River and tributaries; $180,000 was spent on the Cove Creek Dam site, and there has been spent on the survey of the Tennessee River and its tributaries, outside of that amount, a little over $910,000.

This report of the district engineer is complete in every respect; the data collected by the survey, including maps and profiles of the main stream, etc., the layout of the project for the development of main stream and tributaries, stream gaging for a number of stations, study of the effect which a project would have on the regulation of streams or stream flood power and flood control, investigation of dam sites, detailed core boring at Cove Creek, commercial statistics, including the commerce which may be developed for navigation, and a mineral survey of the basin, engineer's layout and estimate of cost for every project, benefits resulting in navigation, flood control, and water power; general plans for the development of the river and its major tributaries for navigation; more efficient development of potential water power and control of floods. With this complete data comes the recommendation of the district engineer, the division engineer, Mississippi River Commission, the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, and the Chief Engineer's report and recommendation.

So when we come to you to-day asking for action we do not leave you in the dark as to just what can be accomplished nor the amount that it will require for the development of the Tennessee River and the most feasible means of this development. The Tennessee River is one of the great rivers of this country. It is formed by conjunction of the Holston and French Broad Rivers near Knoxville, Tenn., in the eastern part of that State, and flows in a southwesterly direction across Tennessee into northern Alabama, and there it flows westwardly to the Mississippi line; and from that point it flows across the State of Tennessee and across Kentucky and empties into the Ohio River at Paducah, Ky. It is 652 miles long, drains an area of over 40,000 square miles, and has a fall of about 500 feet from its source to where it empties into the Ohio River. During low water it contains almost as much water as the Ohio River at the point it flows into it. The comparison is 10,500 second-feet in the Ohio and 10,000 second-feet in the Tennessee.

All engineers to whom this project has been submitted agree that it is perfectly feasible to make the Tennessee River navigable at a depth of 9 feet of water from Knoxville to where it empties into the Ohio. There is some little difference of these engineers as to when this should be done or as to what plans should be adopted.

There has been practically no money spent on the development of the Tennessee River since the authorization and appropriation of $200,000 for its survey in 1922. There has been what we may call in recent new improvements on the Tennessee River an expenditure of $23,000,000, and some of these projects have been completed, and it will require $15,000,000 more to complete these projects, but the engineer reports that this would not make feasible transportation under the facts as now shown.

Before going farther I want to call the attention of this committee to the report of the engineer of the numerous dam sites which can be built for the manufacturing of electricity in connection with the improvement of the Tennessee River and its tributaries. This survey has revealed the possibility of the creation of a hydroelectric power to the extent of 4,000,000 horsepower. There is no section of this United States that is so wonderfully blessed with this possibility, and with its proper development this Tennessee River Basin will at some time become the great industrial center of this country. Speaking of these possibilities on the floor of the House, and the wonderful resources of this section, I have heard your most worthy chairman say that this section was destined to become the Ruhr district of America. Active water-power developments, with the wonderful mineral resources that are situated along this stream in the form of coal, iron, phosphate, copper, marble, manganese, and various other natural resources of this character, if proper development can be had, the possibilities of this section are unknown. Along this river live some 2,000,000 people—no better on earth—progressive and alert. The improvement to the Tennessee River is the key to this situation from three sources—flood control, navigation, and the development of water power.

There is not much navigation on the Tennessee River at the present time, naturally so, because of the shallow places in that river which would prevent steamboats and barges from going from one point to another. This district engineer has estimated that the freight handled on the Tennessee River in 1926 was nearly 2,000,000 tons, 48 per cent forest products, 23 per cent iron and steel, and 15 per cent sand and gravel, and the balance miscellaneous. From this basis the district engineer estimates that when transportation is completely restored on the Tennessee River that it would increase at least 5,700,000 tons at a saving of $7,300,000, and by the growth and development in that section by 1950 there would be 17,800,000 tons at a saving of $22,800,000. The district engineer also estimates flood damages in a period of 500 years, at one time, $14,000,000, would probably reach $1,780,000 per year. The damage done by the flood in 1926, along this river, was $2,650,000. In Chattanooga, one of the great industrial cities of the South, there was estimated over $600,000 damages during that particular year, so much so that the city of Chattanooga has figured on building levees for its protection, which would cost somewhere around $9,000,000 and $12,000,000, but the upkeep for each year would be as much as the estimated damage for any one year.

Thirty-three feet is a danger point at Chattanooga for floods, 22 feet at Knoxville, 18 feet at Florence, and 31 feet at Johnsonville. The building of the Cove Creek Dam and the storage of some 3,000,000 acre-feet of water there would relieve the flood situation in Chattanooga to the extent of 15 per cent, but, of course, the Cove Creek Dam project is not this Tennessee River project, but the information that we get in reference to Cove Creek comes through your order of the survey of the Tennessee River. The district engineer shows in his report, that if the project of building the big dam along the Tennessee River with 10 feet surcharge and 5 feet surcharge, on certain tributaries, that there would be no flood situation at Chattanooga. We know it will take many years of private development to finally reach what is desired in this flood situation, but we know, further, that the development of the Tennessee River by proper means is the beginning of what we finally wish to accomplish. Had the completed system been in operation in 1926, Knoxville would have had 8 feet less of water and Chattanooga 20.8 feet. From the engineer's report, there are two ways of handling the navigation of the Tennessee River so as to make it 9 feet of water—one is by the building in conjunction with private interests, seven high dams which would be power dams, along the Tennessee River, and the Government paying that portion for locks that is chargeable up to navigation; the other is the building of 32 low dams on the Tennessee River which would cost $56,000,000, if provided with locks 56 feet wide and 360 feet long; if 110 feet wide and 600 feet long, as the Ohio, the cost would be about $74,709,000.

The district engineer recommends that this last project be adopted and that it be considered within a period of 10 years; three million being appropriated at once and eight million yearly until completed. The division engineer practically concurs in this report, excepting he would stop the development at Chattanooga with an expenditure of $40,000,000. The Mississippi River Commission reports that the reported project would be practically negative as to the Mississippi River and indorses the division engineer's report. The Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors recommends modification of the existing project for the improvement of the Tennessee River below Knoxville, Tenn., so as to provide for navigable channels with a depth of 9 feet at low water, by the construction of power dams in accordance with plans contained in the report of the district engineer; that is, power dams shall be constructed by States, municipalities, and private interests, under license of the Federal Power Commission, and the locks necessary for navigation shall be constructed by the United States at an estimated cost of $30,000,000; provided, that whenever it shall be demonstrated that the construction of any power dam included in the project is not feasible with the participation of the United States in cost of portion of work not required solely for navigation, the Chief of Engineers shall submit to Congress a special report thereon.

The Chief Engineer concurs generally with the district engineer, and recommends that the adopted project by the United States for the improvement of the Tennessee River from its mouth to Knoxville be for a navigable depth of 9 feet at low water by low-water dams in the number and approximate location as set forth in the report of the district engineer; provided, that under the provisions of the Federal water power act, a high dam and locks may be substituted for any two or more of the low dams and built by private interests, States, or municipalities; and provided, further, that in case high dams are built before the United States shall have built the projective locks and low dams, which are to be replaced, the United States shall contribute to the cost of the substitute structures an amount equal to the estimated cost of the works of navigation for which substitute is made.

The Chief Engineer does not concur in full with other advisory authorities in the following respects:

"(a) The district engineer—he sets time limit on the completion of the project. The Chief Engineer says no time limit can be set at this time.

"(b) The division engineer—he stops the project at the edge of the area most fruitful in the prospect for tonnage.

"(c) The Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors—it leaves the project in the air by making navigation to depend on power development, and requires that the matter of the project be referred to Congress continually.

"The project should be definite and final, and it is possible to make it so, in this case, because there has never been presented to Congress a more thorough and exhaustive study." To this last sentence of Gen. Lytle Brown's I want to most respectfully call your attention: "There has never been presented to Congress a more thorough and exhaustive study."

The proposed and existing high-dam developments along the Tennessee River are as follows: Dam No. 52, Ohio River, already completed, backs the water up in the Tennessee River 43 miles and takes care of the river up to where a dam at Aurora Landing is to be built. It is in the edge of Kentucky. The next dam site is Pickwick Landing, in west Tennessee, near the line, 163 miles above Aurora. Fifty-two miles above Pickwick Landing is Dam No. 1, Muscle Shoals, and a mile above that is Dam No. 2, Muscle Shoals, which, of course, has been completed.

The next dam called for is Dam No. 3, Muscle Shoals, which is 16 miles above Dam No. 2. The next dam called for is at Guntersville, which is 79 miles above Dam No. 3. The next dam is Hales Bar, which is already built. The next is Chickamauga, 41 miles above Hales Bar. The next is White Creek, which is 71 miles above Chickamauga; and the next, Colters Shoals, 62 miles above White Creek, which will clear the water 72 miles up farther. Seven high dams, with the dams now in the river, will make this 9 feet of water. Applications have been made by private interests to the Federal Water Power Commission for license to build a dam at each one of these dam sites excepting that at Guntersville and Dam No. 3, above Muscle Shoals. Very little power can be developed at these two dams, hence no applications have been made for these sites. With no dams being built at Guntersville and Dam No. 3, moneys spent on the balance of the river would be useless, in so far as navigation is concerned from one end of the river to the other. At present there are shoals in the Tennessee River at Guntersville, where the water gets down during low water to a little over 1 foot, and between that and Dam No. 3 to a little less than 1 foot. For an improvement of the Tennessee River it is absolutely necessary to have these dams built. We feel that General Brown's recommendation in this matter is proper, that while low dams would furnish the navigation it would not in any way aid flood control; neither would it be the development of the water power. Wherever a dam is built upon the Tennessee River as a power dam and proper locks are placed therein for navigation, this does away with two or three similar dams that would be required. The cost of these low dams should go toward the expense of building the higher dams.

There has been no complete survey in the way of borings or plans that will be required to build a dam at either one of these sites or the small dams required, hence for the determination of the feasibility and the cost of building dams at No. 3 and at Guntersville we feel that detailed information should be gathered in reference to these projects, as there is no possibility that any corporation or individual will seek the right to erect power dams at these points. We, therefore, are asking for an authorization of some $150,000. That investigation might be made at these two points, as it will be necessary, before this project is completed, that either low dams or these two high dams be built in that section of the river. We are informed that now there is some request of the next $250,000,000 being placed in this bill and it is our purpose to hold this down to one hundred million, therefore we are only asking that it pass the project of the improvement of the Tennessee River as contained in the report and recommendation of the Chief Engineer be adopted and the $150,000 be authorized for detailed information in reference to Guntersville and Dam No. 3.

We know that the President of the United States favors the development of the great rivers of this country, as reported in his speech of last summer at Louisville, Ky., at the celebration of the completion of the 52 navigation dams along the Ohio River.

I am glad that this project has been completed. I am glad that these people have been given the advantages of this great river, even at an expense of $125,000,000 in its completion, but the Tennessee River is almost as great. The dams to be built in the Tennessee River are practically all great power projects, which will mean much to the development of the hydroelectric power in this country. The improvement of the Tennessee River would not only affect power and navigation but its completion will be the end to the great destruction caused by the flood waters coming down from its hills and mountains. We have now waited since 1922 for full information in reference to this great river and its tributaries, wanting to know what can be done, what should be done, and what the cost will be to make the improvements. We have this now before you in completed form, and we ask your aid and your help. We can see no reason why it should not be granted. The Great Creator has given us these hills and these mountains, these wonderful natural resources, with a progressive people living along its borders that are ready to take advantage of these conditions. Therefore we only ask that which we feel is right—your favorable action on this report.

Mr. GASQUE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have five legislative days within which to extend their remarks on the consolidation of veterans' activities, the bill which has been considered to-day.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from South Carolina asks unanimous consent that all Members have five legislative days within which to extend their remarks on the bill under consideration. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

HON. JAMES FRENCH STROTHER

Mr. SHOTT of West Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for one minute.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from West Virginia asks unanimous consent to address the House for one minute. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. SCHOTT of West Virginia. Mr. Speaker, ladies, and gentlemen, I bring a message that will cause regret to some of the Members of the House who served with Judge James French Strother in the Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Congresses, as a Representative from the fifth West Virginia district. Judge Strother died to-day after a lingering illness, at his home at Welch, W. Va. He was the third of his family to serve in this House, his grandfather and great-grandfather having represented their districts in Congress. Judge Strother was the possessor of many splendid gifts of mind and heart, and had gained a vast wealth in friendships and in the esteem and love of his fellow citizens. He ornamented the bench for a score of years and wore the priceless jewels of fairness and impartiality as a judge. His two terms in Congress were marked by a conscientious effort to give his State and country efficient service, devoting his good judgment, high conception of duty, and tireless energy to the task until a breakdown in his health ended a career of great promise of usefulness. He was faithful in his friendships, firm in his convictions, true in his obligations, just in his dealings, clean in his politics, and worthy in citizenship.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED

Bills of the Senate of the following titles were taken from the Speaker's table and under the rule referred as follows:

S. 8. An act for the relief of Lieut. David O. Bowman, Medical Corps, United States Navy; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 304. An act for the relief of Cullen D. O'Bryan and Lettie A. O'Bryan; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 363. An act for the relief of Charles W. Martin; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 420. An act for the relief of Charles E. Byron, alias Charles E. Marble; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 428. An act to authorize the transfer of the former naval radio station, Seawall, Me., as an addition to the Acadia National Park; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 525. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Navy, in his discretion, to deliver to the custody of the Louisiana State Museum, of the city of New Orleans, La., the silver service in use on the cruiser New Orleans; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 549. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to proceed with the construction of certain public works, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 684. An act to amend section 9 of the Federal reserve act, as amended, to authorize the Federal Reserve Board to waive notice by State banks and trust companies of intention to withdraw from membership in a Federal reserve bank; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

S. 857. An act for the relief of Gilbert Peterson; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 888. An act for the relief of Francis J. McDonald; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 1045. An act for the relief of Sheldon R. Purdy; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 1101. An act to authorize the Postmaster General to investigate the conditions of the lease of the post-office garage in Boston, Mass., and to readjust the terms thereof; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

S. 1252. An act for the relief of Christina Arbuckle, administratrix of the estate of John Arbuckle, deceased; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 1407. An act for the relief of William Zeiss, administrator of William B. Reaney, survivor of Thomas Reaney and Samuel Archbold; to the Committee on War Claims.

S. 1638. An act for the relief of William Tell Oppenheimer, jr.; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 1641. An act for the relief of Thomas A. Dwyer; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 1742. An act authorizing Arthur S. Judy, lieutenant commander, Medical Corps, United States Navy, to accept the distinguished-service medal tendered to him by the President of the Republic of Haiti; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

S. 1748. An act for the relief of the Lakeside Country Club; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 1798. An act for the relief of Alice M. A. Damm; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 1945. An act for the relief of Nellie Francis; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 1952. An act providing a nautical school at the port of New Orleans, La.; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 1959. An act to authorize the creation of game sanctuaries or refuges within the Ocala National Forest, in the State of Florida; to the Committee on Agriculture.

S. 2013. An act for the relief of Germaine M. Finley; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 2166. An act for the relief of Richard Riggles; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 2219. An act for the relief of the city of New York; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 2272. An act for the relief of Harold F. Swindler; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 2400. An act to regulate the height, exterior design, and construction of private and semipublic buildings in certain areas of the National Capital; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

S. 2414. An act authorizing the Government of the United States to participate in the international hygiene exhibition at Dresden, Germany, from May 6, 1930, to October 1, 1930, inclusive; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

S. 2458. An act for the inspection of vessels propelled by internal-combustion engines; to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

S. 2466. An act to carry into effect the findings of the Court of Claims in the case of William W. Danenbower; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 2467. An act for the relief of William Hensley; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 2608. An act for the relief of William C. Rives; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 2662. An act for the relief of Della D. Ledendecker; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

S. 2718. An act for the relief of Stephen W. Douglas, chief pharmacist, United States Navy, retired; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 2873. An act to carry into effect the finding of the Court of Claims in the claim of Elizabeth B. Eddy; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 2908. An act extending protection to the bald eagle, the emblem of the United States, and for other purposes, to the Committee on Agriculture.

S. 3026. An act authorizing the General Accounting Office to make certain credits in the accounts of Horace Lee Washington and Arthur B. Cooke, United States Consular Service; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 3038. An act for the relief of the National Surety Co.; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 3039. An act for the relief of the estate of George B. Spearin, deceased; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 3043. An act authorizing the establishment of a national hydraulic laboratory in the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce and the construction of a building therefor; to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

S. 3045. An act for the relief of Walter P. Crowley; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3184. An act to permit the county of Solano in the State of California to lay, construct, install, and maintain sewer outlets over and across the Navy longitudinal dike and accretions thereto, in Mare Island Straits, Calif.; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3185. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to dispose of material no longer needed by the Navy; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3425. An act to amend the act of Congress approved March 1, 1929, entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a children's tuberculosis sanatorium"; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

S. 3449. An act to amend section 4404 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the act approved July 2, 1918, placing the supervising inspectors of the Steamboat Inspection Service under the classified civil service; to the Committee on the Civil Service.

S. 3538. An act to authorize the Secretary of Commerce to convey to the city of Port Angeles, Wash., a portion of the Ediz Hook Lighthouse Reservation, Wash.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3566. An act authorizing the President to place Lieut. (Junior Grade) Christopher S. Long, Chaplain Corps, United States Navy, upon the retired list of the Navy; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3642. An act for the relief of Mary Elizabeth Council; to the Committee on Claims.

S. 3648. An act to correct the naval record of Edward Earle; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3653. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to provide compensation for disability or death resulting from injury to employees in certain employments in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes," approved May 17, 1928; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

S. 3741. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the South Fork of the Cumberland River at or near Burnside, Pulaski County, Ky.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3742. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Cumberland River at or near Burnside, Pulaski County, Ky.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3743. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Cumberland River at or near Canton, Ky.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3744. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee River at or near Eggners Ferry, Ky.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3746. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Maysville, Ky.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3784. An act for the relief of John Marks, alias John Bell; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3820. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of certain bridges in the State of Tennessee; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

S. 3893. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Navy, in his discretion, to deliver to the custody of the State of South Dakota the silver service presented to the United States for the cruiser South Dakota; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. 3895. An act to authorize the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to widen Wisconsin Avenue abutting squares 1299, 1300, and 1935; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

S. J. Res. 24. Joint resolution for the payment of certain employees of the United States Government in the District of Columbia and employees of the District of Columbia for March 4, 1929; to the Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments.

S. J. Res. 127. Joint resolution authorizing the erection on the public grounds in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, of a memorial to William Jennings Bryan; to the Committee on the Library.

S. J. Res. 140. Joint resolution to provide for the erection of a memorial tablet at the United States Naval Academy to commemorate the officers and men lost in the United States Submarine S-4; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

S. J. Res. 143. Joint resolution creating a commission to prepare plans for a monument in the city of Washington commemorarating the achievements of Orville and Wilbur Wright in the development of aviation; to the Committee on the Library.

S. Con. Res. 14. Concurrent resolution requesting the Secretary of the Navy to detail a medical officer for duty as physician to the Senate and House of Representatives; to the Committee on Accounts.

S. Con. Res. 26. Concurrent resolution authorizing the holding of hearings by the joint committee to investigate the pay and allowances of personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, and Public Health Service; to the Committee on Rules.

SENATE ENROLLED BILL SIGNED

The SPEAKER pro tempore announced his signature to an enrolled bill of the Senate of the following title:

S. 3714. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Wabash River at Mount Carmel, Ill.

BILLS PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. CAMPBELL of Pennsylvania, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee did on this day present to the President, for his approval, bills and joint resolutions of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 155. An act providing compensation to the Crow Indians for Custer Battle Field National Cemetery, and for other purposes;

H. R. 565. An act for the relief of Clarence L. Stevens;

H. R. 2029. An act to authorize the coinage of silver 50-cent pieces in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase;

H. R. 2231. An act for the relief of Leonard T. Newton;

H. R. 2825. An act to amend section 5 of the act entitled "An act to establish a national military park at the battle field of Stones River, Tenn." approved March 3, 1927;

H. R. 3097. An act for the relief of Capt. George C. Seibels, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3098. An act for the relief of Capt. Chester G. Mayo, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3100. An act for the relief of Capt. P. J. Willett, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3101. An act for the relief of Lieut. Arthur W. Babcock, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3104. An act for the relief of Lieut. Edward F. Ney, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3105. An act for the relief of Lieut. Henry Guilmette, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3107. An act for the relief of Lieut. Edward Mixon, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3108. An act for the relief of Lieut. Archy W. Barnes, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3109. An act for the relief of Capt. William L. F. Simonpietri, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3110. An act for the relief of Capt. John H. Merriam, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 3112. An act for the relief of Lieut. Commander Thomas Cochran, Supply Corps, United States Navy;

H. R. 4055. An act to authorize a cash award to William P. Flood for beneficial suggestions resulting in improvement in naval material;

H. R. 564. An act for the relief of Josephine Laforge (Sage Woman);

H. R. 4289. An act to approve Act No. 55 of the Session Laws of 1929 of the Territory of Hawaii, entitled "An act to authorize and provide for the manufacture, maintenance, distribution, and supply of electric current for light and power within the district of Hamakua, island and county of Hawaii";

H. R. 5693. An act providing for retired pay for certain members of the former Life Saving Service equivalent to compensation granted to members of the Coast Guard;

H. R. 6119. An act for the relief of the Gray Artesian Well Co.;

H. R. 6131. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to erect a marker or tablet on the site of the battle between Nez Perces Indians under Chief Joseph and the command of Nelson A. Miles;

H. R. 7391. An act that the Secretary of the Navy is authorized, in his discretion, upon request from the Governor of the State of North Carolina, to deliver to such governor as custodian for such State the silver service presented to the United States for the U. S. S. North Carolina (now the U. S. S. Charlotte), but out of commission;

H. R. 7701. An act to authorize fraternal and benevolent corporations heretofore created by special act of Congress to divide and separate the insurance activities from the fraternal activities by an act of its supreme legislative body, subject to the approval of the superintendent of insurance of the District of Columbia;

H. R. 7830. An act to amend section 5 of the act entitled "An act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii," approved April 30, 1900;

H. R. 7855. An act for the relief of Carl Stanley Sloan, minor Flathead allottee;

H. R. 7984. Mr. WHEELER presented a resolution adopted by Farmers' Union, Local No. 367, of Dagmar, Mont., which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

At the regular meeting of the Farmers' Union, Local No. 367, of Dagmar, Mont., held on April 1, 1930, the following resolution was read and unanimously adopted:

"Whereas it has been brought to our attention that the Federal Farm Board has made a further cut of 15 cents per bushel in the loan value on wheat; and

"Whereas this cut was made without ample notice to the growers; and

"Whereas the Farm Board had given the impression they would keep the former price of $1.25 per bushel (based on Minneapolis) in effect until June 30, 1930, and the farmers have been persistently urged to withhold their wheat from the market and to keep it on their farms until the above date; and

"Whereas the above action by the Farm Board tends to break the confidence of the farmers in the farm marketing program: Therefore be it

"Resolved, That we denounce such action as unfaithful to the wheat growers; and further be it

"Resolved, That the Farm Board give better assurances of fulfilling its promises in the future, and that more ample notice be given any future action of this nature; and be it further
